ROLL OF HONOUR.

IN MEMORIAM.

(1914-1918).

LELAND—In ever-loving memory of Lionel Thomas (Tommy) Leland, who died 5th July, 1925, from the effects of wounds received in France 1915 and 1916.

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be since he lingers there.
And we, ah! we, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return
Think of him faring on as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here."
Mother.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

CLOSE OF NEWMARKET.

DIOMEDES' STERLING PERFORMANCE.

MARGERITTA SCORES AGAIN.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWMARKET, Friday Night.

The Irish-bred colt, Diomedes, set at rest all doubts about his merits by the magnificent style in which he beat the Coventry Stakes winner, Iceberg, in the race for the Princess' Stakes this afternoon. It was a most captivating performance, the like of which we have not seen for a long time, and it is marvellous to think that Mr. F. S. Myerscough bought the son of Argos in Dublin for less than two hundred guineas.

After the way in which he beat Iceberg here there is not much doubt that Diomedes is the fastest two year old we have seen this season over five furlongs, and it is a great pity that he is not engaged in any of the important two year old events of the back-end or in any of the classic races of next season, so it is of no use making comparisons between him and the Sun Worship colt or any of those we saw run for the Exeter Stakes.

ICEBERG FANCIED.

This afternoon Iceberg was well fancied by his trainer to beat Diomedes, though the confidence behind the latter was so great that from being a 5 to 4 chance, odds of 2 to 1 had to be laid on him at the start. He went off like a streak of lightning, and, running well within himself, he beat Iceberg in a canter by four lengths.

There were all sorts of rumours about his having rapped himself at exercise, but he speedily gave the lie to these by the fluent style of his victory. He ran here for luck in the colours of Mr. Myerscough, who sold him to Mr. S. W. Beer in the spring.

W. Waugh fancied his filly, Little Mark, a sister to that speedy filly, Morals of Marcus, but she was beaten six lengths for second place, and she was receiving 15lb. from the winner, too. Considering that Iceberg had won in good style at Ascot, we can safely put Diomedes down as an exceptional colt.

MARGERITTA'S GOOD WIN.

The chestnut filly, Margeritta, who was bred by Mr. Ernest Bellamy, also won her race, the Fulbourne Stakes, in the style of a really good one. Here there was an unexpected market opposition, for Diamond, from Mr. R. C. Dawson's stable, was very heavily supported, and though Margeritta was favourite she only had a fractional market call at the close of the betting. If she did not win in the same devastating fashion as Diomedes, she was always holding Diacqueud, and at the finish beat him easily by two lengths.

The second is an improving sort of colt, but he only beat Balkan a neck for second place. The good-looking Perfect Peach colt, a half-brother to Sardedon, was unlucky in the paddock, but was not started.

One of the best races of the day was that for the last event, the Milton Welter Handicap, in which there was a great struggle between Mardi Gras and Transcendent. The former, who was bought out of a selling plate by Cottrill not long ago, put up a great show, but Transcendent came away at the end.

That beautifully-bred, but erratic, colt, Leonardo, went to the front at once in the race for the Ellesmere Stakes, and, never being headed, won in a canter from Strephon and Baldemey. Donoughue scored a popular success on the favourite, Guardsman, in the Waterbeach Handicap.

TO-DAY'S FANCIES.

Both Mignault and Voltoi are engaged in the Old Newton Handicap at Haydock Park this afternoon, but both are severely weighted against the older horses. Despote's penalty may pull him out of count over this distance. I very much like the chance of SIERRA LEONE, who may not be quite the stayer he was thought earlier in the season, but may win over this mile and a half. MILFOIL should have no difficulty in winning the Paddock Maiden Two-Year-Old Plate, while I like the chance of the MOUNTAIN MIST GELDING in the Ashton Two-Year-Old Selling Sweepstakes.

The London Cup is the big event at Alexandra Park. There I like the chance of LIVE WIRE.

ATHLETICS AND CYCLING.

CIVIC GUARDS' SPORTS.

The Committee in charge of the annual sports of the Civic Guards A.C. have framed an attractive programme for to-morrow at Croke Park. It consists of a dozen athletic and four cycling events, the latter including the Five Miles' Championship of Ireland, while a hurling match between the Garda champions and Army champions will form a pleasing novelty in connection with sports meetings. Splendid entries have been received, and fine weather alone is necessary to ensure the success of the meeting, which is held on behalf of the Guards Benevolent Fund.

MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL SPORTS.

The annual sports of the Masonic Orphan Boys' School will be held to-day, in the grounds at Richview, Clonskeagh, commencing at 2.30. The D.M.P. band will be in attendance from 3 o'clock to 6 o'clock.

The usual monthly run of the Irish Cyclists' Old Timers' Fellowship will be held this afternoon, to Enniskerry, starting at 3 o'clock at Donnybrook Bridge. Tea at Powerscourt, 5.30.

All the events have been splendidly supported by owners, and, judging by the demand for stabling accommodation, a goodly number of horses will meet their engagements, so that a brisk afternoon's racing seems assured. Ordinary trains will leave Amiens street for Baldoyle at 1.0, 1.30, and 2.5, and specials will be run in addition, if required. Selections are as follow :—

MALLOW.

CLOSE FINISHES.

HIGHLANDMORE'S FINE WIN.

Another very unpleasant experience awaited racegoers yesterday, when the second meeting of the season at the new Mallow course was entered on. Heavy showers all the afternoon left the enclosures and paddock in a slushy state, and the scarcity of cars to take people back to the station in the evening meant that hundreds had to trudge through a sea of mud. As on the occasion of the opening day, the racing was excellent, and there was a very fair attendance; but the rain acted as a complete spoil-sport. The Mount Hilary Hurdle Race proved disastrous for backers. The useful, but unlucky, Orbigny was regarded as a good thing, and odds were freely laid on him; but when going well in front at half-way he jumped the rails at a hurdle and ran out of the course. Curiously enough, Limber Dancer and Erin Remember ran out at the next hurdle, and Cool Warrior alone was left in the race. Erin Remember ultimately jumped the hurdle, but finished a long way behind the winner. The Firville Park Stakes, which was run during a blinding hail shower, produced an interesting finish between Sporting Derie, San Diago and Kildarra Boy. For a long way San Diago was in front, but he failed to withstand the vigorous challenge of Sporting Derie, who ran out the finish in game style. Sporting Derie had shown a partiality for the course previously; for at the opening meeting she won the Firville Park Trial Stakes. Only four horses started for the Rakes of Mallow Steeplechase, and with Ganzey tailed off at half-way, and Ballinacurra Boy refusing the second last fence, the important stage of the race was left to two—namely, Cairbre and Mask-On, and a particularly fine finish between the pair resulted in a short head victory for Cairbre. Mask-On, who was conceding 2st. 2lbs. to the winner, made his own running, which doubtless prejudiced his chance and under the circumstances he put up a very fine race, and was over-hauling Cairbre again at the finish. The Independence Day Handicap proved a most attractive affair, and brought out a nice field of runners. Backers of Highlandmore were on bad terms with themselves when it was seen that, as usual, he did not strike off with the others at the start, and lost some seventy or eighty yards. Though making up the ground gradually along the far side of the course, it still looked long odds against him when they swung into the straight. Up to this stage Barrackton Lad had been in front, and on his retirement the names of Jicky, Lady Blanchette, Prince Hiram and Bridgemore were shouted in turns as the likely winner; but, overhauling them one by one, Highlandmore, with a great final effort, shot up to beat Bridgemore on the post. It was a very fine achievement on the part of Mrs. E. M. Croft's horse, who was conceding weight away all round, and was also labouring under the disadvantage of the slow start; but the long run in on the straight enabled him to just accomplish the task. The Munster July Cup, which was the first nursery handicap of the season, fell to Gross Green; and Early Bird, ridden by Mr. H. Lelmege, accounted for two well-backed candidates in Outcast Bee and Gallardo for the Duhallow Plate. Details :—

Highlandmore dwelt at the start, and Barrackton Lad, striking off the quickest, carried on the running from St. Eminence, Carrie Long, Lady Blanchette, Jicky, Most Noble, Prince Hiram, Bridgemore, and Miss Druce. So they ran until half a mile from home, when Jicky drew out, attended by Lady Blanchette, Prince Hiram, Bridgemore, and Highlandmore. At the distance Bridgemore headed Jicky, but was soon challenged by Highlandmore, who in a grand finish won by a short head; five lengths divided second and third. Goose Green, striking off the quickest, carried on from Rhea, Clonty, Pauline's Pride, and Grosvenor's Reward. NEW CHURCH
I.R. GLOUCESTER STREET, DUBLIN.
A temporary Edifice has been erected on the site secured for the New Church, which is badly needed in this locality.
It is already crowded, and the Shrine has aroused a deep spirit of Devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes, with most beneficial results among the people.
The Accommodation afforded by the Temporary Structure is inadequate. The Administrator strongly appeals to the Catholics of Dublin and of Ireland for the means to undertake the building of the New Church. The district being one of the most densely populated and poorest in the city, little pecuniary aid can be expected from it.
The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass will be offered EACH WEEK for Subscribers.
Subscriptions will be thankfully received by any of the Clergy, or by

France and Britain.

The idol of "complete agreement," to which homage was paid by Mr. Ramsay Macdonald and M. Herriot at Chequers some weeks ago, is proving already to have feet of clay. During the conversations the 16th July was mentioned as a suitable date for a Conference of the Allies. The arrangement of the Conference seems to have been left to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, and the Foreign Office sent out the invitations. As M. Herriot had an equal part with the British Premier in deciding to call the Conference, the Foreign Office, naturally enough, did not think that an invitation to France was necessary; but now the Paris Press is up in arms against the British Government, more especially as a notice of the Conference was sent to Berlin. The allegation is that Britain is holding the proposed meeting purely for her own ends. The spectre of perfidious Albion has been resurrected, and even M. Herriot seems to have joined in the general outcry. He denies emphatically that the question of Germany's attendance at the proposed Conference ever was raised at Chequers, with the result that the invitation to Berlin is regarded in Paris as a flagrant breach of faith on the part of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald. In the circumstances, it is more than likely that the French Government will demand a modification of the Foreign Office's plans; and before the Conference meets at all Britain and France may find themselves in sharp disagreement.

When the original communiqué was issued after the Chequers meeting we warned our readers against undue optimism. The differences between France and Britain are not differences of detail or of procedure; they are fundamental. France wants to reconstruct the Continent as Napoleon or Bismarck would have reconstructed it—on the principle of "the loser pays." Britain wants to remould the society of nations in a better—or, at any rate, a different—way, and to break for ever with the old traditions which have brought so much misery into the world. M. Poincaré was the very incarnation of the old idea. During his term of office in France no progress was made towards European peace; the people of the United States were driven further and further back into their shell of isolation, and the world began to despair. When the recent general election in the Republic overthrew the Poincaré régime and placed the Radical Mayor of Lyons at the head of affairs, the forces of reaction seemed to have suffered final defeat, and the way towards understanding seemed at last to be clear. The present attitude of the French Press, however, confirms the view that M. Herriot is not master in his own house. To-day, as yesterday, the French people are determined, if possible, to secure the last ounce of their pound of flesh from Germany.

The proposed Conference of Allied Powers will serve no useful purpose if its discussions are restricted rigidly to questions of ways and means. Certainly the American Government will have nothing to do with it if it is to be merely a revival of the old Supreme Council of Mr. Lloyd George's day. Two vital issues, which are interdependent, must be settled. One is the question of the Dawes Report; the other is the question of the Ruhr. The Dawes Report has been accepted as a basis of settlement by every interested Power, including France; and by common consent its proposals are quite impracticable while the existing conditions prevail in the valley of the Ruhr. The report requires Germany to make certain payments to the Allies, and bases all its vital calculations on an economic unit which includes the Ruhr Valley. Obviously, while French troops remain in possession of this all-important territory, the recommendations of the Report cannot possibly be put into force. The evacuation is an essential condition precedent to a European settlement. M. Herriot during the first weeks of his Premiership encouraged the hope that this condition was about to be fulfilled. He released the German prisoners who had been interned or sentenced by M. Poincaré, and allowed those Germans who had been expelled from the Ruhr to return to their homes. Now, however, matters seem to have relapsed to the stage at which they were left when Mr. Baldwin laid down the reins of office.

The Farmer's Need.

In reply to a question in Dail Eireann yesterday President Cosgrave stated that a grant of over £100,000 had been made to the Local Loan Fund with the object of helping farmers to carry out necessary work on their farms. One hundred thousand pounds is not a great sum. Distributed over the farming industry in the form of loans, it may appear to be almost inconsiderable, but it is a step in the right direction. Agriculture in the Free State stands at the cross-roads. It has suffered severely in recent years from a variety of causes. Competition has increased immensely, and, unless farmers in this country can bring themselves into line with those in Holland and Denmark, the outlook for their industry is bleak. If our agriculture were placed on a secure basis of efficiency, Irish farmers would have little to fear from competition with Northern Europe, since they possess the inestimable advantage of proximity to the British market. Ireland, however, like Great Britain herself, has fallen behind. In Great Britain the number of agricultural labourers has diminished during the last ten years by 70,000: the wages earned for this class of work are low and the conditions unattractive. The Free State is in no better case, and here the matter is far more serious, since the whole prosperity of the nation depends upon agriculture. Some system of co-operation is needed to ensure that the profits shall reach the producers. It has been estimated that the addition of one penny per gallon to the price of milk in England would place the sum of £5,000,000 in the pockets of the farmers; and this result could be secured by a mere deflection of the profit from the retailer towards the producer. Co-operative farming has achieved striking results wherever it has been given a proper trial, and in Denmark it has restored agriculture in a quite astonishing fashion. In the United States a crisis has resulted from an excessive confidence in the production of wheat at the expense of dairy produce, which yields far better prospects of profit. In this country there is no temptation to neglect dairy produce, but the profit can be lost if that produce is of an inferior kind. We welcome the amendment to the Dairy Produce Bill which provides for compulsory pasteurisation of all milk and cream in the creameries. This is another step in the right direction, since in these days of keen competition goods are saleable only when they reach the highest standard of excellence. The evidence is clear that the milk sold in the Free State has deteriorated to an alarming extent, with the result that it has endangered both the health of the citizens and the good reputation of Irish dairy produce.

The Medical Register.

Some weeks have passed since the President of the General Medical Council announced a very disconcerting result of the Anglo-Irish Treaty. Under our new Constitution medical men who qualify in the Free State have lost the right to be enrolled on the Medical Register of Great Britain and Ireland, which hitherto had given them, as doctors, the freedom not only of these islands, but of all the Dominions and Dependencies of the British Empire. If the blow were irreparable, it would be a far-reaching calamity, since, in the first place, the British Medical Register confers a status far higher than that of any Colonial register, and, in the next place, the Free State educates a much larger number of doctors than it is able to support. Fortunately, the damage can be repaired quite simply. The General Medical Council itself can take no action which might seem to be an interference with our new independence; but there is no doubt that, at the instance of the Free State Government, the British Government would initiate legislation that would restore the old order of things. The alternative—a separate medical register for the Free State—would consign our doctors to a status so inferior that our medical schools would be forced to close their doors. In these circumstances the various licensing bodies in the Free State have made their choice without hesitation. Addressing new licentiates yesterday, Mr. R. C. B. Maunsell, the President of the Royal College of Surgeons, explained that, in response to the Government's request for their views, the qualifying bodies had appointed a representative committee, which had reported unanimously in favour of re-instatement on the British Medical Register. This decision has been laid before the Government; but, as it has taken no action, the Council of the College of Surgeons and, no doubt, the other licensing bodies, continue to be uneasy about the future. The Government's inaction is not fair to the medical profession in the Free State, and the necessary request for British legislation ought to be made without further delay. Mr. Maunsell's statement removes the last excuse for any feeling that an arrangement which is vital to the profession's welfare would involve the slightest diminution of our national prestige.

New Lamps for Old.

Some ten years ago the name of St. Petersburg was changed to Petrograd, and now the Bolsheviks have changed it once more to Leningrad. The example seems to be infectious; for now another capital of Europe is to be known by a new title. During the present week the Norwegian Storthing decided to change the name of Christiania to Oslo, as from the first day of next year. The town of Oslo, founded in or before the eleventh century, occupied the eastern part of the present city of Christiania, suffered many vicissitudes of fire and siege, and was incorporated, seventy years ago, in the modern city. The motive for the change seems to be the same which has caused Dun Laoghaire to supersede Kingstown—a reviving pride in ancient history and tradition. Just as Dun Laoghaire has turned its back upon the memory of a British King, so Oslo obliterates that of King Christian IV., who founded the Norwegian capital exactly four centuries ago. We have much respect for the sentiment which seeks to give, in modern times, a local habitation to names that stir—or are supposed to stir—currents of patriotic memory. Our only objection is that the gentle practice may be carried to excess, with consequent confusion and inconvenience to the general public, and possibly with some loss to the places themselves. It is for this reason and not, as some Gaelic enthusiasts prefer to suppose, through any prejudice against the Irish language, that we deprecate the orgy of name-changing which is now rampant in the Free State. We are doubtful whether Bray has gained anything by its alteration to Bri Cualann or Queenstown by its sea-change to Cobh, and a long time must pass before these rugged names grow sleek in the mouths of the not unimportant world that deals in commerce and consults railway timetables. At present urban councils seem to be able to earn a cheap reputation for patriotism by changing the names of Irish towns at their own sweet will. We suggest that such changes should be possible only as the result of a plebiscite of the inhabitants.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

Yesterday evening the King, attended by Captain Sir Bryan Godfrey-Faussett and Colonel Clive Wigram, returned to Buckingham Palace from Newmarket. GRE

THE TRADE LOANS BILL.

CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES' POSITION.

SECONDARY TEACHERS.

METHOD OF DISTRIBUTING THE GRANT.

The Trade Loans (Guarantee) Bill passed the report stage in the Dail yesterday. Mr. John Good protested against the proposal to give loans to co-operative societies, which did not pay income tax, in order to enable them to compete with ordinary traders.

Moving the second reading of the Intermediate Education Bill, which repeals certain provisions of the Acts of 1878, 1890, and 1914, Dr. MacNeill said that the "crazy" system of basing the grants to secondary schools on the results of examinations would be abolished.

Mr. T. J. O'Connell pointed out that it was not stated in the bill that the grants would be distributed on a capitation basis. He and Professor Thrift and Mr. E. H. Alton protested strongly against the proposal to sweep away Section II. of the Act of 1914, which they described as the teachers' charter.

The Minister for Education explained that the bill was intended merely to pave the way for reforms. He had no intention of imparing the position of the teachers, and that would be made clear at a later stage.

SENATE'S POWERS.

CIVIC GUARDS' PAY AND ALLOWANCES.

The Garda Siochana Bill, as amended by the Senate, was considered by the Dail yesterday.

Sections VII. and VIII. of the bill deal with the regulations governing pay, allowances, and salaries. The Senate amended the section so as to give it power to annul or approve the regulations.

The Minister for Justice said that regulations in respect of pay and allowances were strictly analogous to money legislation. The Senate had no power to amend a certified money bill, but it claimed the right, and asserted it by passing those amendments, to annul or approve the regulations issued under the Garda Siochana Bill. While he did not say that the Senate's action contravened the letter of Article 35 of the Constituton, he contended that it contravened the spirit of the article.

Nevertheless, he intended to ask the Dail to accept the amendments. The temporary Act, under which the Civic Guard were working, would expire at the end of the present month, and if the bill were not passed the Guards would have exactly the same power of arrest as the members of the Dail. That was a situation that he would not like to see arise.

If the Senate annulled regulations unreasonably or improperly, it would be open to the Minister to introduce them as a money bill with which the Senate could not interfere.

Mr. Thomas Johnson said that he thought that the spirit and the letter of the Constitution had been observed by the Senate in passing the amendments. Conditions of service and pay were matters in which there should be some security; they should not be variable at the will of the Minister.

The amendments were agreed to, and the bill was passed.

BILLS ADVANCED.

The Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1923 (Continuance and Amendment), Bill was passed and ordered for transmission to the Senate.

The Fisheries (Election of Conservators Postponement) Bill and the Damage to Property (Compensation) (Amendment) Bill passed the report stage.

TRADE LOANS BILL.

"ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES" DEFINED.

On the report stage of the Trade Loans (Guarantee) Bill the following was added to the definitions:—"and the expression 'essential commodities' means the commodities taken into account by the Minister for Industry and Commerce for the purpose of the compilation of the periodical cost of living index number and such other commodities as may from time to time be declared by Order made by the Minister for Industry and Commerce to be essential commodities for the purpose of this Act."

On the motion that the bill, as amended, be received for final consideration,

Mr. Figgis asked for a statement of the position, having regard to the fact that under the British Trade Facilities Act guarantees could be obtained for works in the Free State.

Mr. Hewat complained that the Government had given very little information, if any, as to the purpose the bill was to be put to and the lines to be followed when it was passed. Something had been said in the discussions about co-operative bodies, and one would assume that the Minister had in the back of his mind the using of portion, at all events, of the money in connection with co-operative effort. Whether that was right or not depended on the purpose for which the corporation was being secured. He wished to protest, if it was the intention of the Government to use public money in connection with any form of co-operation entering into competition with ordinary private enterprise.

SURPRISED AT OPPOSITION.

Mr. Hefferman expressed surprise at hearing opposition to co-operative societies at this stage, and said that if anything was to be gained by the bill it would be by putting money in the hands of producers, acting in some cases on a co-operative basis, and enabling them to put their products in the hands of consumers at a lower cost to the consumer and, perhaps, at a better price to the producers. He thought Mr. Hewat's mind had been tainted by the resolution circulated to deputies by the Dublin Mercantile Association.

Mr. Johnson said that he hoped that the bill would not be the last of its kind, and that it would become law. By this they were authorising the Ministry to inflate currency by one million. They were also authorising the Ministry to do the work of banking institutions. Banking institutions would give credit backed by the State. Inflation of currency for reproductive purposes would be a good thing for the country.

Mr. Good said that it was unfair to contend that bad trade was brought about by the absence of capital.

Mr. Johnson—Non-expenditure of capital.

Mr. Good said that bank returns showed that there was more capital available than there was trade to employ it. Could the Government provide capital on better terms than the banks were willing to do?

HEAVIEST BURDENS.

The heaviest burdens in Europe were levied on trade in the Free State by their home Government. In addition to the burden of taxes they had labour demanding higher wages than were paid elsewhere. There could be no doubt that bad trade arose from the two causes mentioned. Instead of giving an artificial stimulus they should devote more energy towards the removal of these burdens.

Co-operative societies were not subject to income tax or corporation tax. This might seem a small matter, but it affected profits by 30 per cent. In other words, the Government took 30 per cent. of the profit of the ordinary trader. Co-operative societies, instead of making profits, reduced prices to the consumer, but did not carry any of the burdens of the ordinary trader. For that reason he considered that the competition of co-operative societies was unfair.

Mr. Hogan (Minister for Lands and Agriculture) denied that the bill had been rushed. Section 1 permitted the Government to guarantee money to any enterprise which was likely to lead to employment, and Section 2 permitted the Government to make a loan to any association of producers or consumers calculated to produce a reduction in retail prices in Saorstat Eireann.

Deputies had asked whether it was intended to make loans to co-operative societies as against private enterprise. There was no such intention.

But if it was suggested that the co-operative societies should be excluded that could not be depended on. A society whose operations were likely to lead to a reduction in the retail prices was entitled to get a loan on the same terms as any other form of organisation.

Mr. Gorey said that the farmer must have education to enable him to protect what he produced, and this bill was a step in the right direction. Agricultural produce in the country had to be sold for practically nothing compared with the price which it brought in the city, and it was essential that there should be a closer connection between producer and consumer.

The bill was agreed to, and the next stage was fixed for Tuesday.

TELEPHONES BILL.

The Telephone Capital Bill, 1924, passed the Report stage without discussion, the final reading being fixed for Tuesday.

SECONDARY EDUCATION.

END OF PAYMENT BY RESULTS.

Dr. MacNeill, Minister for Education, moved the second reading of the Intermediate Education (Amendment) Bill, which repeals certain specified provisons of the Acts of 1878, 1890, and 1914.

The Minister said that the bill proposed to abolish the making of grants to secondary schools on the basis of the results of written examinations of the students. It was generally admitted that the system carried on in the past had more than one vice, and that it should be removed. The object of the bill was not quite apparent on the surface. The bill was necessary to abolish the method of payment of grants on the results of written examinations, and to substitute for it the capitation form of grant, now almost universal in modern educational systems.

He explained at some length the four sources of income of the Intermediate Education Board. Of those sources no fewer than three were in the past dependent on the results of written examinations. That dependence was statutory, and the object of the bill was to repeal that.

Mr. O'Connell (Labour) said that he was in agreement with the Minister that the system of grants on examination results should be abolished. The bill, however, was not so simple as it looked. In the first place it did not appear, on the face of the bill, that a capitation grant was to be substituted for a grant on an examination. He had no fault to find with the first two sections of the schedule, which set out what was to be repealed, but the third section was quite a different thing. In that it was proposed to repeal the whole of Section 2 of the Intermediate Education Act of 1914.

TEACHERS' CHARTER.

That Act was passed, principally, if not entirely, because of the agitation carried on over many years by the lay intermediate teachers. Section 2 provided for a teachers' salaries grant, and under it certain rules were made. That section was the Magna Charta of the lay teachers. It was the first recognition of their existence in the intermediate system. The rules made under the section provided that there should be a minimum salary for the lay teacher, and that was fixed at £140 a year. It was not much, but it was something.

There was also a provision in the rules that one lay teacher should be employed for every forty pupils. That rule, known as the "one in forty" rule, gave some security that a certain number of lay teachers would be employed in the schools. The regulation did not apply to any one particular school, but it was arranged for each of two groups of schools—the Catholic schools and the Protestant schools. He was credibly informed that the "one in forty" rule was never fully observed in the Catholic group. There was a further regulation that the lay teacher should have a contract of agreement, with three months' notice.

The bill before the House proposed to repeal Section 2. If that section were repealed, the rules made under it would also go, and, with them, all the advantages that the lay teachers had gained after years of struggle. The repeal of the section would place them in the same position as before 1914. Moreover, there was no necessity for repealing the section, for the purpose of the bill could be secured without doing so. There was no urgency for the measure.

There was no necessity for him to point out the deplorable, even the scandalous, position of the lay secondary teachers to-day. Every one had to admit that an improvement in their position was long over-due. Instead of getting that improvement, the bill would take from them the little modicum of rights given them by the Birrell Act. He would oppose the second reading unless the Minister gave an assurance that the provision would be deleted in the next stage of the bill.

PURELY DESTRUCTIVE.

Professor Thrift said that he also would oppose the second reading for several reasons. He would pass over the fact that it was introduced towards the very end of the session, and the other fact, admitted by the Minister, that it contained a great deal more than was apparent on the surface. He opposed the bill chiefly on the grounds that it was a purely destructive measure. There was not a single constructive feature about it.

He would not argue at length the grievous state of the secondary teachers. Everyone knew that they had practically no tenure of employment, that they were wretchedly paid, and never knew in any particular year what income they would receive. In addition, they had no right to a pension. Everyone admitted that something should be done on their behalf, but nothing had been done. For two and a half years their case had been urged on the Government and in the House, and at the end they were presented with a bill which would have the effect of removing the little that the teachers had to stand on.

The bill did not even say that there was to be payment on capitation. The bill told them nothing further than that there was not to be payment by results. How were the grants to be paid? The bill did not give the answer.

The getting rid of payment by results was one of the levers that it had been hoped to use in order to get a constructive bill from the Ministry, but if they accepted the repeal of the clauses set out in the schedule they would lose their lever. Besides that, there was no urgent necessity for the repeal of those clauses. The repeal of Section 2 of the Act of 1914 would remove from the lay teachers the great advantage of a minimum salary and engagement under contract. That was not the most important, but it was an important ground for asking the

The Special Constabulary cost £23,000 more, at £30,500 for the three months.

The Post Office expenditure is £144,700, a decrease of £7,700.

Northern Ireland's contribution to the Imperial Services for the three months was £450,000, compared with £806,250 for the corresponding three months last year.

No British grant in aid for the Special Constabulary was received for the past three months, whereas £300,000 was received for the corresponding period last year.

The balance in the Northern Exchequer at June 30th was £60,265.

NOT A RETIRING PREMIER.

MR. MACDONALD ON HIS DEFEATS.

Referring to newspaper comment on the Government's defeats, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, speaking in South Wales yesterday, said that until they were defeated on something of real importance the Government were going on.

"I am not one of those who say that an election is coming soon," he declared. "I believe that the country has confidence in the present Government. I do not believe that the country wishes to have an election at all. So far as I am concerned, I am not going artificially to create the conditions which would enable me to go to the country with an excuse. I am out for business. I want to do something within the next year or two that will establish peace in Europe—something that will enable us to make a real beginning in social reconstruction."

RAILWAY CASHIER ROBBED.

THIEVES ESCAPE IN A MOTOR CAR.

A bag containing £73 was stolen, after a "hold-up," by two armed men at Westland Row Railway Station, Dublin, yesterday afternoon.

The robbers had two accomplices. One of these stood on guard outside the station, while the other hung about Oriel House, opposite Lincoln lane, where he had left a Ford car in the care of two small boys. Although pursued, the robbers got away easily.

At 2.35 o'clock, when the armed men arrived, the railway station was almost deserted. No train was due to arrive or to depart. At this time, as is his custom, the cashier left his office to pay a number of employés at the Grand Canal their week's wages, and he was accompanied only by a porter, who carried the money bag. The two were about to board an engine to go to the Grand Canal when the armed men dashed up, drew revolvers, and snatched the bag from the porter's grasp.

The armed men ran quickly out of the station, and, shouting "Robbers," the porter gave chase. He followed them along Westland Row and called out repeatedly to attract the attention of passers-by. No one, however, attempted to stop the robbers, who got at £140 a year. It was not much, but it into the Ford car in Lincoln lane, and drove away in the direction of Denzill street.

The robbers were all of average height and build, and were between 25 and 30 years. Two wore trench coats, and another was dressed in a grey suit. One of them is described as clean-shaven, with dark hair and sallow complexion.

MR. JUSTICE FEETHAM.

DEPARTURE BY THE MAIL BOAT LAST NIGHT.

Mr. Justice Feetham, who returned from Belfast to Dublin on Thursday night, was the guest of the Governor-General at the Viceregal Lodge. He left Kingstown by the mail boat last night, en route for London.

WORKERS' SPARE TIME.

CONFERENCE ON HOW IT SHOULD BE SPENT.

GENEVA, Friday.

Speaking on the recommendation relating to the use of workers' spare time, submitted to the International Labour Conference by its Special Committee, Miss Julia Varley, on behalf of the British workers, said that she was not sure that part of the recommendation might not be taken to refer only to the workers when definitions were made of the ways in which spare time might usefully be utilised. A suspicion of this kind would raise strong protests in Great Britain.

The workers, she said, did not possess a monopoly of vices, and, in her view, the best method of achieving results was through a joint committee of employers and employed, free from any outside interference at all.

M. Gautier, for the French Government, appealed to all men of public spirit throughout the world to help to carry out the recommendation.

Mr. Wolfe, for the British Government, proposed the exclusion from the preamble of the article stating that spare time well directed increased the productive capacity of the worker and increased his output and thus might help to obtain the maximum of efficiency from the eight hour day.

The British amendment was, however, defeated by 52 votes to 35, and the recommendation was referred to the Drafting Committee.

PARIS CHEERS THE PRINCE.

PARIS, Friday

The Prince of Wales, on his arrival in Paris this evening, had a great welcome from a dense crowd at the station, and at the reception ceremony airs were played by the pipes of the Cameron Highlanders, and the Prince then drove to the British Embassy amid the waving of handkerchiefs and loud cheers.

His car at times was so closely surrounded by the eager crowds that the other official cars were unable to proceed.—(Reuter.)

POSITION OF IRISH DOCTORS.

OBJECTIONS ANSWERED.

VIEWS OF PRESIDENT OF COLLEGE OF SURGEONS.

"A RIGHT, NOT A FAVOUR."

The question of the registration of doctors in the Free State was the subject of an important statement yesterday by Mr. R. Charles B. Maunsell, the President of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland. Speaking after the ceremony of enrolment of licentiates, he said:—

"I regret that the Council of the College is a present very uneasy about the future. Difficulties have arisen as to the validity of the registration of doctors in the Free State since the date of signature of the Treaty.

"Previous to that date any man or woman who passed the qualifying examination in Ireland had the right to be enrolled on the Medical Register of Great Britain and Ireland, and had the right to practise his or her profession in Ireland, England, Scotland, Wales, or the Colonies and Dominions, and in other countries with whom reciprocal relations existed. Since the signing of the Treaty they no longer have this right.

"This is particularly hard and unfair to students who commenced their studies under the old conditions, and who naturally expected to be placed on the Register without question. In order to restore this right it would be necessary for the British Parliament to pass an Act which would permit the General Medical Council to register our licentiates as heretofore, but the British Parliament cannot do this unless the Free State Dail request that it be done, otherwise Britain would be interfering, without permission, in a Free State concern.

COMMITTEE UNANIMOUS.

"I would not wish you to think that the Council of your College and the Councils of the other licensing bodies have been neglecting this important matter. Several months ago the Free State Government requested all the qualifying bodies within its bounds to report on the advisability or otherwise of setting up a separate Medical Register for the Free State. Three representatives from each qualifying body were appointed to meet as a General Committee to advise the Government.

"After many meetings, and a most exhaustive consideration of the various issues, that Committee unanimously advised the Free State Government to allow us to remain on the existing Register, and pointed out that a separate Register for the Free State would mean the ruin of our medical schools and the ultimate deterioration of our profession, as admission to that Register would only enable a man or woman to practice in the Free State; he or she would not be able to practice in the six counties nor in any other part of the British Empire.

"Some weeks ago the Committee were received, as a deputation, by a Minister of our Government, who discussed the question with us thoroughly and most sympathetically, and promised to submit our views to the Executive Council. Since then we have heard nothing, although we pointed out the great urgency and vital interest of the matter to the future of our medical practitioners and to the health of the country.

THE OBJECTIONS.

"The only people who are opposed to the past arrangement are those who, I think, have not fully studied the facts of the case. As far as I can discern, they have two main objections to the recommendation of the Committee—

(1) It would be undignified to ask a favour of the British Parliament.

(2) It would be contrary to the rights of a citizen of the Free State to be judged by the General Medical Council.

"This latter objection gives the penal powers of the General Medical Council, which are necessary for the removal of undesirable members of the medical profession from the Register.

"Neither of these objections can be sustained, if examined calmly. The first objection is met by the fact that the Free State has not to ask a favour, but to assert a right, as at present the British Parliament cannot authorise the General Medical Council to register our licentiates unless the Dail asks them to do so—in other words, gives its permission.

"The second objection is met by the fact that eight members of the General Medical Council would be Irishmen; that no case of misdemeanour is ever considered by the General Medical Council unless it has first been passed for consideration by a Committee of the General Medical Council, which is known as the Penal Cases Committee, and that no case from Ireland has ever been considered by the Penal Cases Committee unless is has been considered and reported on by the Irish representative on the Penal Cases Committee.

"Surely this should be safeguard enough to ensure fair play to our licentiates! Furthermore, can anyone point to a case where an injustice has been done?

"I mention these matters to you in order that you may see that the governing bodies of the several medical schools have not been neglecting their duty to their students, and also, remembering the fable of the mouse and the lion, in the hope that some of you may know members of the Dail, and may be able to bring home to them the urgency of the whole question."

The following were enrolled as Licentiates of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland:—Philip Martin Banim, Thomas Gerald Boyle, Dorothy Elsie Campbell, Edmond Joseph Daly, William Orr Dunwoody, Thomas Tighe Wandesforde Eaton, Victor Douglas Gordon, Attracta Halpenny, Austin Heron, John Joseph Hogan, James Anthony Kennedy, William McCurry, Arthur Stevens Ffrench O'Carroll, Ernest Orr, Frank Roantree O'Shiel, Muriel Victoria Prentice, John Shiel, Robert Agnew McEwen Bell Simpson.

ABANDONED YACHT SAVED.

FOUND OFF THE SALTEES.

The Kingstown yacht, Siren, which had to be abandoned in mid-Channel during the storm on Tuesday night, was sighted off the Saltee Islands on Wednesday, with all sails set. As the yacht was then in great peril, the motor boat, Macushla, the property of Mr. J. N. Scallan, Clerk of the Peace, manned by Walter Cousins, James Madden, Lieut. Power, of the Dublin Fire Brigade, and Mr. Frederick Hughes, a visitor, went out from Kilmore quay, Co. Wexford.

They found the Siren running before the wind, and Messrs. Cousins and Madden boarded her. A line was thrown to the motor boat, and the yacht was towed into the harbour.

NEW COMMISSIONER.

DUBLIN UNION APPOINTMENT.

Mr. Lysaght, of the permanent staff of general inspectors of the Department of Local Government, has, on the invitation of the Minister, accepted temporarily the position of Commissioner of the Dublin Union.

The Dublin Union Commissioners will now consist of Mr. Lysaght, Dr. O'Dwyer, and Mrs. Power.

Mr. Seamus Murphy relinquishes the position of Commissioner as regards the Union, and will be engaged exclusively on his duties as a City Commissioner.

LEICESTERSHIRE TRAGEDY.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT.

A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest on Captain John Clerk Brodie Callander Bride, who was found shot a short distance from his house at Kirby Bellars, near Melton Mowbray, last Thursday. The widow of deceased, who stated that they were married at Forfar on June 3rd, and arrived at Kirby Bellars last Wednesday evening, said that deceased had no worries, and there had been no unpleasantness.

The gardener, who found the body, said that he formed the opinion that deceased was shot accidentally when he slipped on the wet planks of the footbridge.

The Dail will sit on Monday and devote the whole of the day to Estimates. The Education Estimates will be taken first.

WINTRY JULY.

HAILSTORMS SWEEP THE COUNTRY.

WATERSPOUT IN DERRY.

Wintry weather prevailed over a large part of Ireland yesterday, and it is feared that a good deal of damage will be suffered by farmers.

The weather experts foretold showers and a low temperature for the day, but the showers in many places were of hail, and the temperature fell suddenly.

During the afternoon a thunderstorm passed over Dublin, but the rainfall which followed was not of long duration.

Derry suffered severely from an exceedingly heavy downpour, and hail fell in places as far apart as Armagh and the Curragh of Kildare.

TORRENTIAL DOWNPOUR.

What was virtually a waterspout broke over Derry on Thursday evening, and lowlying parts of the city were flooded to a depth of several feet. So great was the deluge that the sewer traps were unable to carry off the water, and in a short time the portion of the Strand road near the Lough Swilly Railway presented the appearance of a miniature river. Pedestrian traffic here and in William street was stopped, and people had to take circuitous routes to reach their homes.

Fortunately, passengers travelling by the evening train from the city on the Lough Swilly line were able to use the omnibuses, which on the way to the station had to plough through water which reached to the floors of the vehicles. At the station the travellers were obliged to wade knee-deep to reach the platform. One lady who would not venture from the omnibus was carried by two men into the station.

There was also witnessed the extraordinary spectacle of a perambulator containing a baby floating in the street. A boy who was in charge of it was caught in the waterspout, and was unable to reach his parents' house, and when he sought refuge the perambulator floated away.

Streets in the neighbourhood of the Foyle presented the appearance of a river, and here as well as in other parts of the city the ground floors of the houses were flooded.

In one draper's shop much damage was done to stock stored on the floor. The bursting of a sewer resulted in the flooding of portion of a warehouse, where many bags of sugar were destroyed. The damage is estimated at £500.

The torrential downpour, which was preceded by a brief heat wave, swept gravel and stones off the streets on the higher levels, and accumulated them in large heaps in the lower parts of the city.

In the Duncreggan district water swept down the hillside in such torrents that at one point it looked like a waterfall.

CURRAGH HAILSTORM.

A fierce hailstorm swept over the Curragh plain and Newbridge yesterday.

Beginning about 11 o'clock, it continued at intervals until 2 o'clock.

THUNDERSTORM IN QUEEN'S COUNTY.

A very severe thunderstorm raged over a large area in Leix yesterday afternoon, accompanied by a storm of rain and hail. It is feared that serious damage has been caused to corn and potato crops by the hailstorm, which was of great severity.

HAIL AND RAIN.

At about four o'clock Armagh was visited by a torrential storm of hail and rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning. Half an hour afterwards there was a spell of brilliant sunshine.

FUEL SUPPLY IN DANGER.

Abnormal weather prevails in the Glen district of County Limerick, and the crops are in a precarious condition. Turf, which was cut early in May, is still lying in the bogs.

UNCUT HAY CROP.

Owing to the continual wet weather farmers in the Thomastown district of County Kilkenny are unable to cut their first crop of hay, which is now rotting near the ground. On wet land it is feared that the crop will be completely lost unless there is an immediate improvement in the weather.

TRADE REVIVAL.

MR. SIDNEY WEBB HOPES FOR "A REAL RECOVERY."

Mr. Sidney Webb, President of the Board of Trade, addressing the Manchester Chamber of Commerce yesterday, described the state of trade as one of "quiet expectancy."

There were distinct signs here and there, he said, of a genuine revival of business and prosperity, which, he believed, would lead to a no distant date to a real recovery of pre-war activity and prosperity all over the world.

That depended on two things—the growth of the peace feeling throughout the world and on the weather, an important factor in regard to the American cotton crop. They had considerable hopes of the Sudan from the cotton point of view, and the Government would take care that the progress made there would not be jeopardised by any change demanded in any quarter.

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL TEACHERS.

SALARIES IN NORTHERN IRELAND.

The Minister of Education for Northern Ireland (Lord Londonderry) has appointed the following Departmental Committee on the salaries of teachers in public elementary schools in Northern Ireland:—Mr. L. A. Bullwinkle, Mrs. Dehra Chichester, M.P.; Mr. Thompson Donald, M.P.; Mr. James A. Duff, M.P.; Mr. G. C. Duggan, Mr. D. Frizzell, Mr. W. Haslett, Mr. R. J. McKee, M.P.; Mr. J. E. McNeilis, Mr. J. S. Smyth, Mr. A. N. Bonaparte Wyse, and Mr. J. Yates.

The Committee is to take into consideration the rates of salary and other grants at present payable to teachers of public elementary schools in Northern Ireland from the Parliamentary Vote and other sources; and also the regulations of the Ministry of Education governing such payments, and to consider the question of sums from salaries as a contribution in aid of superannuation payments; to make recommendations in regard to the changes, if any, which can be made therein, and the date or dates from which such changes should have effect. Mr. R. J. McKeown, M.", is to be Chairman, and Mr. T. E. Brown, Secretary, of the Committee.

COMPENSATION AWARD.

BURNING OF ROXBOROUGH.

At Clonmel Quarter Sessions, before Judge Sealy, K.C., Mrs. Esther Boyle claimed £10,000 for the burning of her residence, Roxborough, near Clonmel, and its contents, on May 7th, 1923, by Republicans. The case for the applicant was that two of her brothers served with the British forces in the Great War, and then came to live at Roxborough, one of them becoming identified with the Republicans. On the night of May 7th armed and masked men came and ordered Mrs. Boyle, her daughters, and her brothers out of bed, into the yard, and burned the whole place and its contents. It was suggested for the opposition that Roxborough was used as Republican headquarters, that Messrs. de Valera and Dan Breen had stayed there, and that Mrs. Doyle sympathised with the Republicans.

The Judge held that there was no direct evidence that Mrs. Boyle was an active sympathiser with the Republicans, although there was a suspicion, but that was not sufficient to act upon. He awarded £2,900.

REICHSTAG BOMBS.

COMMUNIST PARTY'S PROTEST.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Friday.

The rooms occupied by the Communist Party in the Reichstag and the Prussian Landtag buildings were subjected to a close search this morning by the German political police. It is reported that a large number of detonators, several hand grenades, and a Mauser pistol, with a supply of ammunition, were found.

The searches were carried out on the strength of information which had reached the examining magistrate, who is investigating charges against members of the German Communist Party, who are suspected of high treason, and of forming a political "murder organisation."

The Executive of the Communist Party protested to the President of the Reichstag immediately after the search, demanding that the material removed should be handed over to the Standing Committee of the Reichstag.

FRONTIER CLASH.

BELGRADE EXCITED BY NEW INCIDENTS.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

VIENNA, Friday.

A third clash between Italian and Jugo-Slavian patrols within the last few days, which resulted in the death of two Serbian Customs officials, has created a serious situation between Belgrade and Rome.

The explanation offered is that the Italians believe that the Serbs were on Italian territory. Last week two Jugo-Slavian railway officials were killed by Fascisti on Jugo-Slavian territory at Rakik, near the Italian frontier. It is believed that Belgrade protests may take a more serious form than mere diplomatic exchanges with the Mussolini Government.

Belgrade reports to-night that the officer of the gendarmerie was killed while leading a Jugo-Slav Commission to a place appointed on the frontier to join an Italian Commission for a joint investigation of the two previous clashes in the neighbourhood of Poddrodd.

The Jugo-Slav Cabinet held a long meeting this morning without reaching any decision as to what steps should be taken. Later the Premier received the Italian Minister. The population at Belgrade are dangerously excited, and embittered by the continuous attacks along the border, which have not ceased, despite assurances of friendship from Rome.

The Jugo-Slav Investigation Commission returned to Sorvics, where the members are awaiting further instructions.

ADVENTURES OF A "SHEEP DEALER."

TWO OMAGH BANKS SWINDLED.

An adventurer, who represented himself to be a sheep dealer on a large scale, is reported to have obtained between two and three hundred pounds from the Omagh branches of the Bank of Ireland and the Northern Bank during the present week.

Wednesday last was show day in the town. The adventurer, a tall man, of about 40 years, with sallow complexion, dark moustache, and wearing glasses, entered the Northern Bank and produced some rolls of bank notes, which the officials counted. He said that he was about to commence business in the district.

It was suggested that he should open an account, but he explained that as he expected to do a very large business within the next few days he probably would need all his ready money. He produced a cheque for £350, drawn on the Royal Bank, Bray, and lodged it to his credit. Then he presented a cheque for £100, which purported to have been signed and stamped by the manager of the Ulster Bank, Kingstown, and got cash for it, together with £40 for a "Money Order," which had been marked payable at Derry.

At the Bank of Ireland he went through a similar performance. When lodging the cheque for £100, however, he took only £70 in cash. He also cashed a Money Order for £40.

When the cheque for £350 lodged in the Northern Bank arrived at the Royal Bank, Bray, on Thursday, it was found to be a forgery. The Civic Guards telegraphed to Omagh to have the enterprising "sheep dealer" arrested, and sent on a list of half-a-dozen names by which he had been known.

Inquiries showed that the cheque on the Ulster Bank, Kingstown, also was a forgery, together with the bank stamps which it bore.

The adventurer, in the meantime, had left the district.

SEPARATION AND MAINTENANCE.

LIVELY INTERLUDES.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Friday.

Friday afternoons at Westminster seem to have been selected for the discussion of sex problems. Divorce and legitimacy have had their turn.

To-day the question of separation and maintenance orders cropped up on the report of Sir Robert Newman's Summary Jurisdiction (Maintenance and Separation) Bill, on Clause 2, which provides that when a husband has compelled his wife to submit herself to "a life of immorality," she may apply for separation and maintenance, and, further, that where, in the opinion of the Court, he has been guilty of conduct conducive to such a result, he shall be deemed to have compelled her.

It was largely a lawyer's debate, but Lady Astor at times enlivened it with pertinent observations. In moving to omit the second part of Clause 2, Sir Malcolm Macnaghten contended that it was too vague and ambiguous. He cited the case of Queen Guinevere, and observed that there were people who held that the misconduct of the Queen was due to the immaculate perfection of her husband. If the clause stood unaltered it might well be held that a perfect husband had been guilty of such conduct as to bring him within its provisions.

Colonel Wedgwood opposed the amendment, and then followed a long, legal argument, in which it was contended that the section did not afford sufficient guidance to the judicial authorities who would be called upon to administer it. The promoters of the bill refused to give way, and in the end the amendment was negatived.

Mr. Willison next moved a proviso that a separation order should not be enforceable whilst the wife continued to reside with the husband. Colonel Wedgwood was disposed to accept this, but Mr. Cassels pointed out the danger of it. A woman would be able to obtain an order, and hold it over her husband's head, whilst she still continued to live with him.

Lady Astor considered this a good thing. Mr. Cassels—There will be nothing to prevent the wife from returning from the court to her husband, and having the order framed and hung over the mantelpiece. A further interruption and a gesture from Lady Astor led Mr. Cassels to remark, "I don't know whether the noble lady is shaking her fist at me, but I am content to know that she cannot obtain a separation order against me." There was loud laughter, and a protest from Lady Astor: "It looks bad in print to say that I sat in the House of Commons shaking my fist. I hardly raised my finger." The Speaker intervened, and advised Lady Astor to appreciate a little humour, an observation which was supplemented by Mr. Cassels, who said that it was a lack of humour that led to so many applications for separation orders. The amendment was passed.

This concluded the Report stage, and the third reading was agreed to, Colonel Wedgwood intimating that the Government would now take charge of the measure.

THE LONDON CONFERENCE.

FRENCH OUTBURST.

BRITISH INVITATION ATTACKED.

FROM OUR DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Friday.

A storm has burst over the invitations to the London Conference on July 16. Briefly, the British Foreign Office is charged with having acted in a manner contrary to what had been decided at Chequers; with having inserted in the invitations suggestions amounting to a suppression of the authority of the Reparations Commission, and, incidentally, with having failed to send a formal invitation to the Quai d'Orsay.

For the language in which these charges are formulated and developed in the Paris papers there is certainly no justification. It is perfectly true that no written invitation was forwarded to France. That is because the London Conference was agreed upon by the French and British Premiers jointly, it being left to the latter to invite the other participant States.

The actual terms that the Conference invitations is not available, but it may be stated that the British communication, which was conveyed through the British diplomatic representatives in the various capitals, fell into four parts:

1—An invitation to be represented in London on July 16.

2—A statement that the Conference would discuss the Dawes Scheme.

3—An account of the Chequers conversations.

4—A recital of the British views regarding the subjects of discussion.

It is to 3 and 4 that the French take such violent exception, thought it is difficult to understand why. Both parties at Chequers were tacitly pledged to keep their Allies fully informed of what transpired, and M. Herriot went to Brussels immediately for that one particular purpose.

The views embodied in Part 4 of the invitation are said in France to include a suggestion that a Protocol should be signed by all the interested Powers (i.e., by Germany also), whereby (a) the Allies should agree not again to apply sanctions unless Germany should be guilty of a grave violation of her engagements; (b) any such violation in the future should be examined by a new body, independent of the Reparations Commission.

There is not the slightest ground for suggesting that Britain is desirous of suppressing the Reparations Commission. That body, if the British views were adopted, would continue to deal with violations of the Peace Treaty, but a new organ to deal with violations of the Dawes scheme is, in fact, proposed by Britain, for the reason that the Dawes scheme, in certain points, imposes upon Germany obligations which were not contemplated by the Peace Treaty.

DOMINIONS INVITED.

MR. MACDONALD'S EXPLANATION TO FRENCH PREMIER.

PARIS, Friday.

M. Herriot has sent a Note to Great Britain, stating that the French Government does not consider itself bound by the British suggestions accompanying the invitations to the forthcoming Conference in London.

Sir Eyre Crowe this evening presented a Note to the French Premier, in response to a wire from M. Herriot to Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, expressing surprise that such a protocol had been added to the invitation addressed to the Powers. The Note stated that the British Memorandum, which had excited so much discussion in French circles, was only an exposition of the British views, and that the Conference would be absolutely free to make its own decisions regarding the questions put forward.

At the same time Sir Eyre Crowe announced that the same protocol had been sent with an invitation to the Dominions, which, therefore, it would seem, are to take part in the Conference.—(Reuter.)

OTTAWA, Friday.

In the Dominion House of Commons to-day, Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, said that the Government had received an invitation from London to send a representative to a preliminary conference in London to decide on the question of representation, but Canada had not yet received any invitation to send a representative to the Inter-Allied Conference itself. The Government faddled the Prime Ministery were now considering the choice of a representative to attend the preliminary conference.—(Reuter.)

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

BETTER ATMOSPHERE IN FRANCE.

The stir created in the French Press by the publication of the somewhat exaggerated version of the Memorandum sent to the Allies by Mr. Macdonald on the subject of the coming London Conference shows some signs of subsiding, states The Times. It is now generally realised that the proposals contained therein are not binding upon any country, not even Great Britain. It is understood that there have been some communications between the Foreign Office and the Quai d'Orsay upon the matter, and a better atmosphere prevails. M. Herriot is believed to have made it clear that the French Government does not hold itself bound in any way by the proposals, and reserves to itself the right to make counter proposals.

The position now is that formal invitations to attend a conference in London on July 16 have been sent to, and accepted by, Belgium, Italy and Japan. A separate invitation was sent to the United States Government, which proposes to send observers. With the invitations to the various Allies was also sent a memorandum announcing Mr. Macdonald's view of the conditions in which the Conference should be held. This memorandum was also sent to Berlin, but for the information of the British Ambassador only, not for communication to the German Government, which has not been invited to attend the Conference.

ROMAN URDU FOR INDIAN ARMY.

Another example of how the military lead the way in educating Indians is revealed by the issue of an Army Order prescribing the use of Urdu as the lingua franca of the Indian Army, states The Times Simla Correspondent in a message yesterday. It will be standardised as for school education, and the common script is to be Roman Urdu. Every soldier in future will receive systematic colloquial instruction in Urdu from the day that he joins, whether he be literate in his

FREE STATE PARLIAMENT.

House not to agree to the second reading. He hoped that the Minister would realise that when he asked the Dail to pass an Intermediate Education Bill he should present a constructive and not a merely repealing measure.

POLICY OF OBSCURANTISM.

Mr. E. H. Alton also opposed the second reading, and said that on Thursday night Mr. Johnson had tried to tempt the Minister into a statement as to his general educational policy. In the bill the House got the first real indication of what that policy was. It was a policy of obscurantism, a terrible specimen of legislation by reference. Who would believe that the repeal of Section 2 of the Act of 1914, which looked so little on the paper, would mean so very much?

The secondary teachers had been an orphan child in Ireland, where they had always been kicked and shown the door. They had very few friends, but, largely by their own efforts, they had got their rights recognised. They had got a charter, a very small charter indeed, and the first Act of an Irish Minister for Education was to repeal that charter. He had heard of giving a stone instead of bread, but now the bread was to be taken from the teachers without even a stone being given in its place.

He was not in favour of revolutionary methods in education, and he would support the Minister's statement that in educational matters they should move slowly. He wanted, however, to move forward slowly. The bill was moving backwards rapidly. It was going back to the dark ages. He would not agree to the repeal of Section 2 until he knew that the secondary teachers would get something at least as good as the section gave them.

Mr. Hewat said that the bill was put forward without any reasonable explanation of its meaning. If it had not been for Deputy O'Connell they would have known no more about it than the man in the moon.

General Mulcahy said that the Minister had not made clear what was the immediate necessity for repealing those enactments, and he hoped that he would let them know the necessity for bringing forward a bill of that nature.

THE SYSTEM'S VICES.

Professor Magennis said that the Minister in introducing the Education Bill spoke of it as revolutionary. It was revolutionary.

He was quite willing to admit that the examination system had its vices; it lent itself to cramming, and schools were anxious to secure as much of the result fees as they could, thereby injuring the boys for life and defrauding their parents. He saw advantages in a mixed system of part inspection and part examination. There were qualities of character that could be developed in a student by preparation for an examination, and it was largely because teachers emphasised that took no account of the educational element that they were to be condemned.

As regarded the Birrell Grant, he asked whether Deputy O'Connell was correct in saying that if this section of the Act, 1914, was repealed as proposed, then the rules must fall. Were they to suppose that the advantages which accrued to the schools and the teachers under a British statute would cease to be theirs if a section of that statute were repealed, and they would be left to the sole control of the Minister of Education? He wanted it to be understood that there was an educational policy that had the approval of the House.

Mr. Mr. E. H. Alton—Which is it, sir?

Professor Magennis said that so far as that measure was concerned it had been explained by the Minister. The bill was intended to clear the way to pursue a policy with which I did not entirely agree in respect of the written examinations. If Deputies objected to the Ministers taking the requisite steps to that end, he could see very policy that they had approved, it showed a degree of inconsistency.

Mr. O'Connell said that his point was that the repeal of Section 2 was not necessary to carry out that policy.

A PROTEST.

Professor Magennis said that he merely took his stand against the supposition that it was the deliberate policy of the Minister of Education and the Government to do a grievous wrong to secondary teachers.

Mr. Alton—I do protest against that. I distinctly stated that I had the greatest confidence in the liberality of the Minister's policy. Deputy Magennis has no right to suggest that any Deputy has any other idea.

Professor Magennis said that there was no attack intended or being made.

Professor Thrift said that there was the insinuation of motives.

Professor Magennis said that he had no desire to insinuate motives. There was no ground, he contended, for mistrust. The bill was not a complete Secondary Education Bill. If the repeal of the Section 2 of the 1914 Act would have the results suspected by Deputy O'Connell he would oppose it as strongly and as obstinately as anybody. Everybody knew that the difficulty in the matter was that the secondary teachers were not in the same position as primary teachers. The secondary schools were private property, and it was most essential to remember that secondary teachers were in private employment, and that created a legal difficulty in providing pensions for them. Grants were payable unless these schools conformed to certain requirements. That was the efficacy of the rules. That was the charter for the lay teachers.

NOT DESTRUCTIVE.

Dr. MacNeill, Minister of Education, said that a system which brought children into one class and into competition annually was a crazy system. The bill was not destructive, but constructive. It moved the restrictions placed by previous Acts upon the Intermediate education authorities with regard to the distribution of Intermediate grants.

The Act of 1914 provided that a sum of £40,000 would be available as a separate grant. If that section remained unrepealed the £40,000 would have to remain in future. He held that the effect of the bill was to consolidate that £40,000 with the rest of the funds. In doing that it consolidated any condition attaching to the expenditure of that £40,000 intact.

Professor Thrift asked where the £40,000 would be if the section were taken away.

The Minister said that it was inconceivable that any person carrying the responsibility which he did, and having cognisance of the rules, should approach that matter with the idea of getting rid of those rules in a subterraneous way. Responsibility for maintaining those rules remained as fully as it existed before this proposal was brought forward. He would not permit regulations favouring secondary teachers to be imparted much less done away with by mere implications.

"It will smooth the way," he added, "if I undertake that before the bill passes its next stage I shall endeavour to have it made completely clear whether this would mean depriving secondary teachers of the advantage of the rules. If it is shown to me that there is any such danger I undertake to remove that danger. It has never been the intention of the Ministry to invade or diminish in any way the position which has been created with public approval for the body of secondary teachers, on whose behalf several deputies have levelled their artillery at me to-day.

The second reading was agreed to, and the next stage was fixed for next Wednesday.

OFFICIALS' COMPENSATION.

President Cosgrave moved the second reading of the Local Officers Compensation (War Period) Bill, 1924, the object of which is to make special provision for the payment of compensation to certain former officers of local authorities who were removed from, or otherwise ceased to hold, office during 1919, 1920 and 1921.

The motion was agreed to, and the next stage was fixed for Tuesday next.

The second reading of the Military Service Pensions Bill, 1924, was also passed.

CUSTOMS WATCHERS.

Mr. Alfred Byrne asked the Minister for Finance if he was aware that a number of Customs watchers at the North Wall were under notice of dismissal; and as there was increased work in their department whether he would see that the notice was withdrawn.

President Cosgrave stated that the men who had received notice were casual extra men, employed on a daily basis. In pursuance of the definite policy of the Government to give as much employment as possible to ex-members of the Army, any staff required in that grade would be recruited from such men. He regretted that he was not prepared to cause the notice of discharge to be withdrawn.

At the motion for the adjournment Mr. Byrne discussed the matter further. He said that the reply of the President to his question was inconsistent. He agreed that where additional men were wanted in the Government service men disbanded from the National Army should get the opportunity of competing for the positions. But men with service from twelve months to two years, married men with families, should not be dismissed from employment to make vacancies for ex-service men.

The matter was a serious one, for there were between 1,000 and 1,200 temporary employés of the Government, some with service up to 20 years. Among those there was great fear that the Government, in order to smooth over its present difficulties with a certain class, would get rid of them by degrees in batches of a dozen at a time.

Mr. Davin supported Mr. Byrne.

Major Cooper said that the whole question of temporary employment in the Government service, now in a chaotic state, should be considered by a departmental committee or some other body. He would consider it an injustice that men who were too old or unfit to join the National Army should be dismissed to make room for ex-Service men.

Mr. McGrath said that he had in the past drawn attention to ex-British soldiers with pensions, some as much as £120 a year, being kept in Government employment at salaries of £5 and £6 a week.

President Cosgrave said that the case had been very much exaggerated by Deputy Byrne, while Deputy McGrath's statement was extraordinary exaggeration. As usual, the statement was made generally that all those men were married men with families. Eighteen men were appointed at the North Wall, on a day-to-day engagement, fifteen months ago. Their employment was temporary, and it was now desired to give those jobs to men who had served the country in the hour of danger. It was the right of those men to demand such jobs. There were ex-National Army men with wives and families looking for work. He came across this week one such case where they were actually starving. The intention was to give preference to ex-Army men in all Government employment. That was the policy of the Government.

In reply to other questions, the President said the matters they covered were not raised on the adjournment motion.

At 4.20 the House adjourned until 3 p.m. on Monday next.

QUESTIONS IN THE DAIL.

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE INQUIRY.

Mr. Burke, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, in reply to Mr. Johnson, said that a Committee of Inquiry—not a Commission—into the working of the Insurance Act in the Saorstat had been appointed. The terms of reference were:—

(1) To inquire into, and report on, the advisability of the continued maintenance of the system of National Health Insurance in its present form, and to make any recommendations which the Committee considered proper in that connection.

(2) To consider whether it is desirable to institute a system of medical treatment on a contributory basis, and, if so, to advise as to the form which such system should take; and

(3) To examine and report on the question whether the medical benefit at present assisted or maintained out of State or local funds could be improved as respects efficiency and economy, and, if so, in what manner, due regard being had to any recommendations made under the preceding paragraph.

The Committee is mainly departmental. The Chairman was Deputy Professor Magennis. The other members were:—A representative from the Department of Finance, two from the National Health Insurance Commission, two from the Local Government Department, one from the Actuarial Department, Dr. Rowlette and the Very Rev. Canon McHugh, P.P. had also been nominated. It was not proposed to invite any organisation to act on the Committee.

Mr. Johnson complained that no one affected by the Insurance was to be represented on the Committee.

Mr. Burke replied that a considerable number of interests were involved, and it was considered better to set up a committee that would take a broad view of the whole situation. Dr. Rowlette had taken an active part in the Irish Public Health Council, and Canon McHugh had special knowledge of the working of the Act in rural districts.

ADVANCES TO FARMERS.

Mr. G. Woulfe asked the Minister for Finance if he would consider the advisability of placing funds in the hands of the Board of Works to enable farmers to borrow money at a low rate of interest for drainage and other improvements on their lands.

President Cosgrave, in reply, said that advances of the kind referred to were made from the Local Loan Fund, and reference to the estimates would show that provision to the extent of £107,000 was being made in the current year as a grant-in-aid to the fund, to make such advances.

Mr. Woulfe asked what would be the rate of interest.

President Cosgrave said that he was afraid he had not any information on that subject, but he supposed that the extra cost of interest that the Government would have to pay would have a bearing on the rate of interest charged. He did not think that it would be possible to make issues from this fund at pre-war rate of interest, but he would undertake to make inquiries.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ASSEMBLY.

In reply to Major Cooper, Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister for External Affairs, said that he was not in a position to give the names of delegates who would represent the Saorstat at the Assembly of the League of Nations in December. He hoped to be able to do so before the rising of the House.

EX-SOLDIERS' GRIEVANCES.

President Cosgrave, in reply to Mr. P. Hogan (Clare), said that since 31st March last, except in a limited number of special cases, the grant of 28 days' leave, with pay and certain allowances, had not been made to soldiers about to be discharged. That grant was properly authorised only while general demobilisation, which ceased about the date mentioned, was in progress. Subsequently—except in the special cases referred to—soldiers who had taken their discharges had done so in the ordinary way on completion of service. He was, however, considering the advisability of issuing grants in such cases on a smaller scale than formerly.

As regarded additional pay for soldiers employed as clerks and storemen, only men specially competent received extra pay.

Defence Order No. 30 did not authorise the grant of any leave, but a General Routine Order dated 24th November, 1923, did so in the cases of soldiers who presented themselves for reattestation. The grant was withdrawn on 4th March last by Defence Order No. 45, which sanctioned the issue of a bounty of £3 instead of leave, but only to soldiers who reattested prior to 31st March. The deputy would find that most, if not all, of the complaints he had in mind were not justified.

MR. BIRMINGHAM PROTESTS.

Mr. Birmingham, Irish Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, has addressed a letter to the newspapers, in which he writes:—"On behalf of my organisation and in defence of the members of my Union, I beg leave to enter my protest against the untrue and unjust statement of the State prosecuting counsel, in which he referred inferentially to the members of my Union as a 'file of thieves.'" He adds that the accused in the case had no connection with the Union, but that many members of it were indignant at the remarks of counsel in Court.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

ROBBERY AND POLITICS.

At the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, James Lennon, in whose case on Thursday a jury disagreed, was put forward for re-trial on a charge of having "held up" and robbed Martin Barrett and Christopher Hewitt of £143, the property of the Bank of Ireland, Bagenalstown, County Carlow, on the 22nd of May, 1922.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Dudley White, K.C. (instructed by the State Solicitor) prosecuted.

Mr. Comyn, K.C., and Mr. J. Comyn (instructed by Mr. O. hUadhaigh) defended accused.

The evidence given on Thursday was repeated.

Mr. Comyn, in addressing the jury, said that there was nothing to suggest or sustain the legal basis of a charge that the accused had done anything with the intention of removing "permanently" the property of the bank. The jury had the right to acquit the prisoner.

His Lordship—They have if they diabelieve the witnesses.

Mr. Comyn—If the jury are merely to register the view of the Minister, or of the prosecution, there is no use in the function of a jury.

His Lordship—The jury, by their oaths, must act on the evidence.

Mr. Comyn—In the view of Mr. Birrell——

His Lordship—I don't care about Mr. Birrell. (Laughter.) He was a politician.

Mr. Carrigan said that it was a strange and astounding thing for one wearing the costume of His Majesty's Counsel to put forward such pernicious views as they had had addressed to them. If, instead of a bank robbery, the prisoner had received from the "Officer Commanding" the death warrant of the manager of the bank, to be logical he should make the same answer as he did in this particular case. The thing was preposterous and unheard of, and it was for juries to try such a case under an experienced and impartial judge, and under the new dispensation, loyally, truthfully, and fearlessly. It was only thus that prosperity would be restored and civilisation sustained. Who ever heard of a country being regenerated by letting loose hordes of men, some of them, no doubt, actuated by wild and unreasoning enthusiasm, to commit ravages and crimes in the name of some pernicious doctrine?

His Lordship, charging the jury, asked what on earth had the robbery of a bank or of individuals to do with politics. He added that if the accused had an order from the Governor-General, and counter-signed by the President of the State, to give him authority to take the bank's money it would be no answer in point of law.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and recommended him to mercy.

Prisoner—"I require no mercy. Up the Republic."

His Lordship—Put him back. I will send the recommendation to the Governor-General.

CIVIC GUARDS ROBBED.

John Dempsey, Andrew McCarthy and Patrick O'Donovan were charged with having, on the 27th August last, while armed, assaulted Civic Guard Michael Healy and stolen a bicycle, a cap and a truncheon, his property.

The evidence was to the effect that while Guards Healy and Smith were cycling about five miles from Skibbereen, Co. Cork, they were stopped by the accused men. One of the three who had a double-barrelled gun was ordered by one of the other two to shoot the guards. The guards' bicycles were seized, and they themselves were put into a field and ordered to strip and hand over their uniforms. They refused. They were asked if they would prefer being blindfolded before being shot. To this they replied that they would not. The accused then forcibly removed their belons, whistles and caps and locked them up in a cowshed. They ordered them to strip within half an hour, and they robbed Guard Healy of a fountain pen and Guard Smith of eighteen pence. The guards were kept in the shed until ten o'clock that night.

The defence was an alibi. Evidence was given to the effect that the three accused men could not have been engaged in the "hold up" and robbery of the Civic Guards, as they were then engaged in farm work in another part of the country.

The jury found the prisoners guilty.

Mr. Carrigan mentioned that there was another charge against the prisoners of attacking a Civic Guard and stripping him. These men, he said, were "wanted" in August till March. He would ask that a nolle prosequi should be entered in the last-named case.

His Lordship—If that is done I cannot take it into account when I am sentencing them.

The prisoners were put back.

REFUSAL OF JURORS TO ATTEND.

Mr. Justice O'Shaughnessy said that the Under-Sheriff had reported to him that three jurors had refused to attend because they had business to do. He directed the Sheriff to notify these jurors that he would fine them £50 each if he found that they did not attend and serve as other jurors did.

THE UNION OF PARISHES.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Diocesan Synod of Tuam at St. Mary's Cathedral, Tuam, on Thursday, the Bishop (the Right Rev. John Orr, D.D.) said that the small number of men preparing for Holy Orders in their Divinity School ought to be a matter of grave concern to them all. The grounds were largely financial, but there must be a want somewhere when they could not produce out of their ranks agents to carry on the Church's work.

A resolution would be before them to reduce the number of the dignitaries from seven to five, something like a due proportion to the number of clergy in the diocese. When all their unions were completed they would probably have no more than twenty clergy, so that the proportion would work out at one dignitary to every four clergy.

He recorded grateful thanks to the Primate for the help which he had given them from the Beresford Fund towards the repairs and upkeep of their churches. Many of their parishes had received substantial grants from that source, without which he did not know how, with their small resources, they could have kept their churches in a fit and proper condition.

Referring to the report on Missions and Temperance, the Bishop said that they welcomed the legislation which was at present being made by the Government.

EX-NATIONAL ARMY MEN

PENSIONS AND OTHER CLAIMS.

The Association of Ex-Officers and Men of the National Army held its half-yearly meeting on the 1st of July in the offices, 23 North Great George's street, Dublin, Mr. Joseph Mack, President, in the chair.

Mr. Thomas Moynihan, Vice-President, pointed out that the amended Pensions Bill had not yet been brought before the Dail.

The Secretary's report showed that a large number of branches of the Association had been opened throughout the Free State.

The Association passed a resolution calling on the Government to have the amended Pensions Bill passed without delay. It urged that men undergoing treatment in hospital should be placed on full pension, as was done in the British Army, and that grants should be made to re-establish them in civil life, and that their wounds should not debar them from competing at examinations for Government appointments. The resolution also urged that the pensions granted were inadequate, and that an Appeal Board should be appointed, with a prominent surgeon as president.

Messrs. Michael Murray, J. McLoughlin, and D. Layde were elected members of the Executive.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE LICENSING BILL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—Permit me to thank you for the way in which you have supported Mr. Kevin O'Higgins in his praiseworthy efforts to secure some long over-due measures of temperance reform.

So far, however, the results have been somewhat disappointing. When a man like Major Bryan Cooper is moved with emotion one day when speaking of our illustrious dead in Gallipoli, it is passing strange that on the following day he can be quite facetious when speaking on such a grave moral and spiritual problem as intemperance undoubtedly is. Strong drink is a greater and more relentless foe than ever the Turk was or could be, and one expects more from a gallant soldier like Major Cooper than that he shall wax merry and aim at producing laughter when measures for the repression of this scourge are under discussion. Some men, he told the Committee, go to the public-house because it is more comfortable than their homes. What about the men who are directly responsible for the discomfort of their homes by reason of self-indulgence? "Many men go into public-houses to get away from their wives." Many of these wives are pale-faced and their children lack nourishing food. One expects from a British officer that, whatever other cause he is prepared to espouse, he will be at all times ready to champion the weak.

There is one ray of hope about St. Patrick's Day. Deputy Johnson said that "the assistants in Dublin intended to take the whole day as a holiday." I sincerely hope that they will.—Yours, etc.,

J. A. DUKE.

YOUNG MAN RETURNED FOR TRIAL.

In connection with the recent incendiary outrages at Clonera, near Clonmel, County Tipperary, Richard Meskill was charged before District Justice Troy at Fethard, with having burned several houses and stacks of hay.

Accused, when arrested, said:—"I burned the whole lot of the houses for sport." Afterwards, when in custody, he made a voluntary statement to the effect that on the 15th of May he burned a cock of hay and a house, the property of John Hayde. He then went to Clonlahy and burned Mr. R. Fitzgibbon's house. An old man named Heunessy lived in that house. He then went to Ballywalters, and burned a cock of hay and a ladder. He had no ill-will against any of the persons whose property he burned, nor did they ever do him any harm. "He only burned for sport."

Accused was returned for trial.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

DUBLIN DIVORCE CASE.

ALIMONY CLAIMED.

In the King's Bench Division (Matrimonial), before Mr. Justice Murnaghan, in the case of Keary v. Keary,

Mr. H. Hughes (instructed by Messrs. Reddin and Reddin) applied on behalf of the petitioner, Anne Keary, 5 St. Paul's terrace, Kimmage road, Co. Dublin, for an order directing the respondent, her husband, William Laurence Keary, of 53 Casimir road, Harold's Cross, Dublin, to pay such an amount of alimony as the Court might think fit, pending the trial for divorce a mensa et thoro for alleged cruelty and misconduct.

It was alleged that the respondent had assaulted the petitioner on several occasions, that he withdrew all the money which stood in their joint names on deposit receipt in the bank, and used it for his own purposes, and had been guilty of misconduct with a person named Cissie McCabe, in London, and other places in England.

It was stated that the respondent was now an undischarged bankrupt, and had no means of paying alimony, although he had offered to pay his creditors 20s. in the £.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan allowed the case to stand for a fortnight.

DUBLIN PRINTING COMPANY.

WINDING-UP ORDER.

Before Mr. Justice Meredith, in the Chancery Division, Mr. Dickie, K.C., with whom was Mr. Bewley (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.), applied on the petition of the Irish National Assurance Collecting Society, that the Gael Co-operative Printing, Publishing and Trading Society, Ltd., may be wound up, and for the appointment of a provisional liquidator. Counsel said that the petition was filed that day.

He read the affidavit of Mr. William J. Norman, solicitor, with reference to a circular handed to him by Mr. O'Dwyer, Chairman of the Gael Co-operative Society, Ltd., according to which a resolution was to be proposed at the meeting which was to be held on the 10th inst., to the effect that the Society be voluntarily dissolved, and a provisional liquidator appointed. Mr. Albert Swain, accountant, had consented to act as provisional liquidator.

The petition set out that the registered office of the Gael Society was at Dublin. The Society was indebted to the petitioners in the sum of £4,500. The Society was at present shut up and not doing any business.

Mr. Dickie said that the motion was really to protect the assets on behalf of the petitioners.

Mr. Justice Meredith granted the application.

ARNOTT V. ARNOTT.

The hearing of the case of Arnott v. Arnott was resumed yesterday by Mr. Justice Murnaghan in the Chancery Division of the High Court, Dublin.

The plaintiffs were Sir John Alexander Arnott, Bart., and Mrs. Rosina Johnson; and the defendant was Lady Emily Jane Fitz-Gerald Arnott.

The action was brought for the purpose of having the defendant removed from the trusts of the will of the late Sir John Arnott, Bart., and for an order that Loftus Percival Arnott be appointed a trustee in her stead, and that the defendant be directed to execute and do all acts and things necessary for that purpose.

Messrs. S. L. Brown, K.C.; Herbert Wilson, K.C., and J. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. Casey, Clay and Collins) were for plaintiffs.

Messrs. W. M. Jellett, K.C.; A. K. Overend, K.C., and R. H. Ryland (instructed by Mr. W. McA. McCracken) were for the defendant.

The plaintiffs' case closed on Thursday, and Mr. Jellett was opening the case for the defendant when the Court rose for the day.

Resuming his address yesterday, Mr. Jellett again referred to statements of Sir Andrew Porter, Master of the Rolls, in 1899 and 1904, one of which was that it would be advisable in the interests of the estate that the defendant should be consulted by her co-trustee. Counsel said that under the terms of the will she had a right to be consulted and informed with respect to proposed investments of trust funds. He also pointed out that in his evidence the plaintiff, Sir John Arnott, stated that at the moment there was about a quarter of a million pounds of the residue of the trust estate money remaining undistributed. Lady FitzGerald Arnott was interested to the extent of one-third of the total investments, Mr. Jellett said, and her position under the will had nothing to say to her position as trustee. With regard to the proposed investment of £30,000 in War Loan, the defendant said that there had been enough invested in it, and she wanted the rest invested in Irish Times shares, or something else, such as Guinness or Coats. Was that a reason why she should be removed from the trusteeship, because she claimed what the will gave her—the right to have a voice in those investments?

Mr. Jellett then dealt with the question of the defendant's withholding her signature from an authority to transfer securities from Cork to Dublin, and pointed out that she was surprised at being asked to consent, having previously signed for the transfer of securities to London. Counsel next read correspondence, and asked was not Lady FitzGerald Arnott justified in being extremely cautious in signing documents, cheques, leases, or whatever they were, without being fully aware of the nature and contents of these documents. He referred to Bristol Steam Navigation shares, of which she signed the appropriation and allocation to Sir John Arnott at £3 10s. per share, while for probate they were valued at £5 each.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan said that there was considerable evidence that £3 10s. was the value of the shares.

Mr. Jellett said that when defendant realised what she had done, she protested, and the appropriation of the shares was cancelled.

Mr. Brown said that they were cancelled by Sir John Arnott at once.

As regards the Irish Times, Mr. Jellett contended that the defendant was justified in her action regarding the shares, as there had been no valuation of the property, except by the Inland Revenue for the purposes of probate. A special resolution was passed by the Irish Times Company, at the instance of Sir John Arnott himself, the effect of which was to deprive the defendant, should she survive him, of the power of control which she should have under the provisions of the will. That, counsel alleged, was a breach of the trust by Sir John Arnott, having regard to the terms of the will.

Mr. Brown said that the resolution was very properly passed for the protection of the shareholders.

Having dealt with other minor matters, Mr. Jellett said that this was an action brought, not by beneficiaries, but by one trustee against another trustee, to the effect that the defendant's conduct had caused serious injury to the estate. This jurisdiction for the removal of a trustee was a very rare and delicate one. What was sought here was the removal of a testator's widow from the trusteeship of his will. Nothing appeared from the evidence or was mentioned there which would justify his lordship in removing her from the trusts of the will.

The further hearing of the case was adjourned till Wednesday morning next.

The city special jurors will not be required to attend the Courts of Justice at Dublin Castle until next Tuesday morning; but the city common jurors must attend at 11 o'clock next Monday, when absent city common jurors will be called on heavy fines.

AN ADVERTISING AGENCY.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT.

Mr. Justice Meredith heard an application by Mr. Dickie, K.C., with whom was Mr. C. Bewley (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.), in an action by Daniel P. Gallagher, managing director of the Irish National Assurance Company, Ltd., against Patrick J. Tuohy, Eamon O'Dwyer, Miss M. Waldron, and John Lynch, trading as Lynch's Advertising Agency, for an interlocutory injunction restraining the defendants, and each of them, their agents and servants, from falsely and maliciously printing and publishing a circular letter purporting to be headed, "Irish National Shareholders' Protective Association, care of Lynch's Advertising Agency, 16½ D'Olier street, Dublin," containing statements reflecting on the conduct of the plaintiff.

Counsel read the plaintiff's affidavit, which stated that Mr. Tuohy was formerly an organiser of the Co-operative Clothing Society, Abbey street, Dublin, and was the holder of five shares in the Irish National Assurance Company. Mr. O'Dwyer was formerly a director of the company, and is also the chairman of the Gael Co-operative Society, Ltd. Mr. Tuohy was acquainted with the fact that the Co-operative Society, Ltd., was carried on by the deponent as provisional liquidator under the direction of the Court and with the knowledge of the creditors' committee, but, notwithstanding, Mr. O'Dwyer and Miss Waldron signed and issued the circular in question.

The whole circular of which he complained in the action seemed to be directed to getting rid of the present directorate of the company, which consists of Padraig O'Maille, Deputy Speaker of Dail Eireann (chairman); James Burke, Minister for Local Government; George Ryan, Patrick O'Dwyer, Michael O'Leary, managing director Messrs. Cahill and Co., and deponent himself.

Mr. Justice Meredith granted the order conditional on an affidavit respecting publication being filed, which counsel said would be done immediately.

EXECUTORS SUED.

THE LETTING OF DONEGAL LANDS.

Before Mr. Justice Sullivan, an action was heard in which Rebecca Jane Houston, of Killyverry, Newtowncunningham, Donegal, claimed damages against James E. Butler and Robert S. Watters, of Letterkenny, both of whom she sued as executors of the will of George Noble Robinson, deceased, auctioneer, for alleged breach of contract by George Noble Robinson in the letting of plaintiff's lands at Killyverry. The plaintiff alleged that in the years 1919, 1920 and 1922 she employed Mr. Robinson as auctioneer to let the lands, both of her own credit on good and sufficient security. The deceased man contracted to let the lands upon good and sufficient security, yet let them on bad and insufficient security, whereby portion of the proceeds of the lettings became lost to the plaintiff, and she claimed £88 18s. 1d. damages.

The defendants traversed the cause of action, and pleaded that the plaintiff approved and adopted the lettings and securities.

The evidence having concluded,

Mr. Justice Sullivan, in giving judgment, said that he had come to the conclusion that the plaintiff had failed to make out the contract which she relied on. In his view, a note at the top of the deceased man's auction field book did not constitute a contract between the plaintiff and the deceased man, and rather bore out the case made on behalf of the executors of the will of the deceased Mr. Robinson. The action must, therefore, be dismissed, with costs, in favour of the defendants, and he would certify for discovery.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., and Mr. W. F. McCoy (instructed by Mr. J. R. Lynn, Londonderry) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Serjeant Hanna, K.C., Mr. Lardner, K.C., and Mr. Kelly (instructed by Messrs. E. MacFadden and Co., Letterkenny) for the defendants.

COMMISSIONERS FOR OATHS.

The Chief Justice, sitting in the Supreme Court yesterday, appointed the following as Commissioners for Oaths—Charles M'Dermott, Clerk to the District Courts at Ballaghadereen and Charlestown, while he holds office as District Clerk in these places; Bartholomew Brien, District Clerk at Ennis, subject to the approval of the District Justices; Matthew P. Kearney, solicitor, Thomastown; Charles E. M'Creery, auctioneer, Kilkenny; Barry O'Meara, solicitor, Cork, subject to the resignation of Mr. Wynne, Commissioner; James J. McCabe, solicitor and coroner, Cork; and William W. Thornhill, solicitor, Cork.

Mr. W. W. Thornhill was also appointed a Notary Public.

Declarer wins four tricks more with his two Aces and two Kings, and thus gets game.

Result—A and B, 4; Y and Z, 9.

After winning the first trick, declarer can count that he will take two Spades, two Hearts, two Clubs and one Diamond. It is impossible for him to win any more Spades, Hearts, or Clubs, and, therefore, to make game he must win two additional Diamond tricks. This is, however, possible, if either the King or Queen of Diamonds is in "A's" hand.

At Trick 2 the declarer leads the 9 of Diamonds from Dummy, and when "A" plays a small Diamond it becomes very probable that the Diamond honour is in the hand of "B." Should the declarer now make the natural play of the 6 of Diamonds from his own hand, he will be able to underplay the next time Dummy leads Diamonds, and subsequently, to catch "A's" honour, even if "A" has 4 cards in the Diamond suit.

OUTDOOR RELIEF IN BELFAST.

LABOUR PROPOSAL REJECTED.

The Belfast Poor Law Guardians met yesterday, on a requisition signed by two Labour members, to consider the question of extending unrestricted outdoor relief to the unemployed.

Five Labour members urged the Board to seek the necessary authority.

It was pointed out that the proposal would involve a weekly expenditure of £8,365, or an annual outlay of £434,980—equivalent to an additional rate of 6½d. in the pound.

The Board, by 25 votes to 5, decided to continue the present system.

A request that the Board should receive a deputation from the Unemployed Workers' Association was ruled out of order.

Mr. Beattie, a Labour member, urging the proposal for unrestricted relief, described it as justice for 35 per cent. of the industrial classes. An unemployed man, with a wife and four children, could not live on the unemployment grant of 25s. a week.

Mr. John Wilson, Chairman of the Finance Committee, opposing the proposal, admitted the existence of distress in the city, but said that the remedy was work. The Guardians were prepared to co-operate with the Government in providing as much as possible, and had formulated schemes costing £100,000. The Guardians had obtained the permission of the Ministry for Home Affairs to aid the heads of families at discretion.

EARLY MORNING SHOTS.

Peter Duffy, of Carricknacreevey, was charged at Shercock, County Cavan, Sessions with being in unlawful possession of a bicycle the property of Patrick Marron.

Marron said that at 2 o'clock on the morning of May 29th he heard a noise outside his house, and when he asked who was there a shot was fired, the bullet striking the door, near his shoulder. Witness fired a gun shot and the raiders ran away. On going to the barn he found that his bicycle had been taken.

Accused when arrested said that he bought the bicycle for £3.

Accused was ordered to be imprisoned for two months, with hard labour, but on giving notice of appeal he was allowed out on bail.

HOME-CONSTRUCTED WIRELESS.

A UNIT RECEIVER.

PART 4.

Unit 2, the high-frequency panel, should now be constructed. The components required are:—

Ebonite panel 8 by 4 by one-quarter inches; 9 telephone terminals; 4 valve sockets; 1 filament rheostat; transfers for marking the panel. The rheostat should be of good make, as the fine setting of the filament current is very important, apart from the economy in purchasing reputable parts. With this extra panel it will be possible to receive all the stations on a good average aerial.

Square the panel to fit the case easily, and prepare a drilling template as shown in Figure 9. Stick it to the panel and mark the position of the various holes with the punch or scriber. Drill the holes according to the thickness of the screws which are to pass through, the centre hole for the rheostat being on the large side to prevent any binding on the spindle. Clean both sides of the panel with emery paper, finishing off with a soft cloth and a little oil, rubbing lightly until all traces of the oil have disappeared. Mark the terminals as in Figure 9, wash the panel in warm water, and finish off with a soft dry cloth.

Mount all the components in position and reverse the panel. Its appearance should be as shown in Figure 10, which is the wiring diagram. The valve sockets are as follow:—3 and 6, filament; 4, plate; 5, grid.

It may be remarked that in all constructional work the valve sockets should be mounted so that the plate pin is to the right, looking at the top of the panel. This makes wiring easier.

Clean the various screws, apply a little flux, and "tin" the ends with the hot soldering iron. Cut the wire into convenient lengths and stretch it to remove all kinks.

Apply a little flux to the screw ends and solder the leads on as follows (Figure 10):—

10 to 13, via 15; 12 to 7; 9 to 14, with a lead "tee'd" in from 4; 8 to 2, via 6; 1 to 5; 3 to 11.

The accessories required are a No. 75 coil; 60-volt high-tension battery; 1 ordinary valve (a Mullard valve was actually used in the set on which this article is based); a 4-volt accumulator of not less than 30 ampere-hours' actual capacity; brass rods to make another ten connections (about 16 inches).

Next week's article will describe the operation of the four completed panels.

Previous articles on the construction of a five-unit receiver—crystal and amplifier—which will give results as good as those of a ready-made set appeared on page 9 of the Irish Times of June 14, 21 and 28.

A description, with diagrams, of the construction of the ST 34, two-valve circuit and low-frequency amplifier to operate a loud-speaker, appeared on page 9 of the Irish Times of May 10, 17, 24, 31 and June 7.

Back numbers can be obtained at the Dublin and branch offices.

LAWN TENNIS.

THE FINAL STAGES AT WIMBLEDON.

A FRENCH CHAMPION.

By GORDON LOWE.

Last Saturday night the All-England Club entertained the foreign and overseas players to dinner at the Trocadero. It was very pleasing to see so many lawn tennis players gathered together from different parts of the world and to be able to talk over old times with many of them. The President, Mr. Wilberforce, pointed out that he would have had to welcome the guests in twenty different tongues and yet not have included all. He preferred to address them in the lawn tennis language of "love all," which everyone could understand. Speeches from the representatives of each country followed. The keynote of all was the great friendship and brotherhood which lawn tennis fostered throughout the world, and that international tennis goes far deeper than the mere playing of the game. Mr. Myrick, the President of the American Association, was a particularly welcome guest, and told us of the great regard all American players have for Wimbledon. He is the man responsible for the sending of teams to Wimbledon each year. A Wimbledon without the presence of the best Americans might be rather a dull affair. Norman Brookes, who looked none the worse for his hard matches against Hunter and Washer, said that originally he had no intention of playing in singles this season, but had come only to watch others play.

A meeting has been held this week to discuss the advisability of only using a hard court surface for the Davis Cup matches. It is interesting that the powers that be had realised at last the importance of this matter. It is unfair that a country should have to play on grass courts when they have been used to hard courts, and vice versa. The experience of Spain, a hard court country, who had to play us at Edgbaston on a wet grass court, was unsatisfactory to both sides. A hard court surface for all would be a step in the right direction. A grass court under any conditions will soon show signs of wear and tear. The last four at Wimbledon—Lacoste, Williams, Borotra and Raymond—are all products of the hard court. Their faster stroke production clearly shows this, as opposed to the late hitting and bad style which the average grass court must produce.

It is an obvious fact to those who have watched the general play at Wimbledon that the present foot-fault rule requires revision at no distant date. There have been many instance, quite unconsciously, let me add, when players have broken this rule. Every player is inclined to transgress in his effort to gain the net after he has served. He attempts a run or start, and one foot, generally his right, comes over the line before the ball has left his racket. It is difficult even for the linesmen sometimes to detect it, so quick is the movement. A slow motion film would be the only way of arriving at the true facts, and I fancy a good many servers would be surprised themselves at what would be revealed. A foot-fault gives the server a bigger advantage than he has naturally, and makes it a doubly difficult job to break through the service. I believe the only remedy is to draw a line about two feet behind the base line and to keep the server behind it until he has hit the ball. He should be allowed to do whatever he wishes behind this line, be it a run, hop, skip, or a jump.

It was a bitter disappointment to all that Susanne Lenglen was obliged to retire at Wimbledon, both for her own sake and for ours. We had looked forward to another soul-stirring encounter like the one she had with Miss Ryan, with Miss McKane, and possibly Miss Helen Wills. One can only hope that the ex-champion will be able to play in the Olympic Games, though it hardly seems possible that she will be fit enough to play in so short a time. Apart from the physical strain, the mental one of big match play and of living up to a reputation is enormous. I believe that it is the latter that is beginning to tell on the French girl. A nerve and frame of iron is required in order to stand continuous Singles. I quite agree with Vincent Richards when he says that international tennis is too big a strain for most women to endure. There are, of course, notable exceptions, but for the majority it is too strenuous. It is a very different story playing ordinary club tennis for exercise.

Heartiest congratulations are due to France for having two such splendid players in Borotra and Lacoste as finalists at Wimbledon. The French have rapidly been coming to the front as a great lawn tennis Power since the war, but have never quite been able to obtain the highest honours before. They have come into their own at last. Lacoste at nineteen reached that one higher rung on the ladder when he steeped off the centre court after his dramatic defeat of M. Alonso. The same might be said of Borotra after his victory over Richards. It matters little which of these two great sportsmen win to-day: two more popular figures have never graced the centre court. Borotra has won this season in France, and may do so again at Wimbledon. I prefer the foundations of Lacoste's game. It is the more balanced, and goes to prove, as players such as H. L. Doherty before him have done, that accurate and purposeful driving, backed up by sound volleying, will usually triumph. Borotra's tennis is unlike anything that has been seen before. I doubt if there has ever been a man so quick in court. Everything is over and finished in a flash. The secret of his success is wonderful speed of foot and quickness of eye. France should now have a sporting chance of bringing the Davis Cup back to Europe. It must not be forgotten that the French also have the call on Cochet, another brilliant young player, who is at least the equal in skill of this year's finalists at Wimbledon.

The American team, without the inspiring influence of a Tilden or a Johnston to lead them, have not won the highest honours at Wimbledon, although Vincent Richards and Williams started favourites for the Singles. I hope that in the near future we shall see Tilden, the greatest master of all, at Wimbledon once more. I understand that he will be available for the challenge round of the Davis Cup, which will take place at Forest Hills, New York, in September.

It has been truly said that the Americans do not understand Doubles' play; in fact, they do not even take Mixed Doubles seriously in their own country. They concentrate on Singles, and Hunter and Richards would be the first to admit that they are a pair of individualists when playing Doubles together. In spite of this, I fancy that Williams and Washburn will prove themselves the best-balanced team at Wimbledon this year.

THE CHAMPIONSHIPS.

MISS M'KANE'S WIN.

At Wimbledon yesterday the Ladies' Final was the outstanding event. The regrettable illness of Mlle. Lenglen left the issue between England and America, Miss McKane meeting the American girl, Miss Helen Wills.

There was a surprising semi-final in the Men's Doubles, in which the holders, Lycett and Godfree, met the Americans, Washburn and Williams. With Lycett on his best form, the holders took the first set fairly comfortably, but it was a great fight in the second, 13 games being played before the Americans squared the match. Williams played wonderful tennis in the third set, which the Americans won at 6-3. The fourth was a great struggle. The Americans led at one time 5-3, but the holders drew up to make it 7-all. Then came a sensational finish. Lycett had been limping for some time, and at this point he was compelled, owing to persistent cramp, to give in, and so the match was awarded to America. It was sheer bad luck.

The match for the Ladies' title will long be remembered, and Miss McKane's success was richly earned. There was a period when it seemed almost certain that Miss Wills would win, but her opponent made a splendid recovery. Never before has she shown such perfect control over her powerful driving, and in all her play she lived up to her great reputation. Miss McKane dropped the first set, 4-6, but recovered in the second, and, by accurate placing, squared the match, after being led 4-1. Afterwards she dominated the situation. She led at 6-3, and was within an ace of the match when she hit out. Then Miss Wills took a game, but at 6-4 Miss McKane went out for set, match, and championship. Details:—

GREYSTONES OPEN TOURNAMENT.

After a blank day on Thursday, play was continued yesterday at Greystones, when, thanks to a morning start, the programme was further advanced. In order that the tournament may be completed this afternoon, all players are requested to be in attendance at 10.30 this morning. Details:—

REMARKS.

The question of the course is so acute at the moment that some dare prophecy as to to-day's chances. The weather has been so wild of late that all that can be done now is to wait and see and hope for the best this afternoon.

How many small cruisers will go in to-day's R.A.Y.C. match is not known at the moments of writing. One hopes that the start will be representative, for this class of yacht scored a distinct point when a Corinthian race, as one of the club's champion cups was allotted to the type, and it rests with them to make their claim good.

The 25-footers scored in the first "Independent" Cup tie, Punchilo finishing first and Darthula second; and, if the weather be on the fresh side to-day they should repeat the performance, for such conditions will suit them better than the 21-footers.

During the week Hera's fit-out has been pushed forward, and in order to have her ready for to-day, should she be ready and be a starter, the Dublin Bay division of the 17-footers will have a strength to qualify for a special prize.

Both Seapoint matches will start and finish from the back of the West Pier Kingstown, to-day. Curious it is to note how this year like last the tide seldom serves on Saturday afternoons. Clontarf Club is an equal sufferer in this respect, but both clubs will have a suitable tide next week-end.

By the way, the annual Dalkey Island Race of the Seapoint Club will be sailed next Monday evening. A handicap start will be made, the limit boat, Brunette, going at 7 o'clock, Peggy following at 7.6, Oreen at 7.12, Unona, Elsie, Arline at 7.18, Gretta at 7.25, Sho Shi at 7.31, Mercia III. at 7.34, and Bonita (scratch) at 7.35 p.m.

The Proposed "Ballot Race" of the Wag Club will be sailed off the same evening, the first gun 6.30 p.m.

At Howth this afternoon the 17-footers' will sail for one of the special prizes presented by Mr. P. T. Walshe. Former winners this season being barred, Bobolink is not eligible for this race, but is, of course, for the club prizes.

So the Siren has been salved, having being picked up derelict off the Saltees and brought safely to Kilmore Quay. Wonderful is the vitality of craft of her type, with a high proportion of beam to length. They may be very lively in a seaway, but none can say they are not seaworthy.

MUDHOOK Y.C. REGATTA.
Heira II. Dismasted.

The regattas of the Circle fortnight were opened yesterday from Hunter's Quay by the Mudhook Club, in a good sailing breeze from the west. There was an entry of 63 boats for eleven matches. No entry appeared for the handicap over 100 tons, but, by arrangement, Susanna started with Adventuress, which had been placed in the second handicap with Rendezvous but the latter could not get off the slip in time.

It was a day of excellent sport, especially in the 12-metre class, but here, unfortunately, the Irish-owned Heira II. was dismasted in a squall when tacking towards Lunderstons Bay, and fortunately no one was injured. A bow plate had given way owing, it was reported, to a weakness through dry rot.

The race was practically one between Vanity and Noresca, and was a very even one at most points. Noresca's superiority was established on the second windward turn to Inverkip, in a steadying fresh w

DUBLIN.

FUNDS SUPPORTED. BANK STOCK BETTER. GUINNESS WEAKER. MARCONIS AND SHELL TRANSPORTS STRONG. TRAMS AND DUNLOPS DULL.

There was a very quiet week-end market on 'Change yesterday, but with one or two points of special interest. The statement made by Signor Marconi at a lecture influenced a further sharp rally in the shares of his telegraphic company. Shell Transports rose strongly. Government National Loan was again supported, and the price did not alter. British Funds also met attention, with prices rather higher on balance. Banks were very firm, with Bank of Ireland half a point higher. Guinness Shares alone quoted in the Brewery group. The Ord. were at one time maintained, but later came on offer, and fell back; the Pref. were also a shade easier. Marconi Ord. Shares were busy and firmer at 31s. 9d. to 32s., and Radio Common and Preferred Shares were also in request. Home Rails were a little irregular. Dublin and South-Eastern and Great Southern Guaranteed were better, but Great Southern and Midland Great Western 4 p.c. Debs. fetched lower prices. Dublin United Tram Ord. and 'Pref. were easier, and some odd lots of Parent Tyre Ord. were picked up at 17s., and the Pref. at 13s. 3d. Alliance Gas Shares were very firm. Bakery Shares were idle, and Drapery Shares practically featureless. Imperial Tobacco Shares were harder, but British-Americans were weaker. Lever Bros. Pref. issues were sold at a relapse of 4½d. to 6d., and the quotations were carried under 20s. x.d. for both the 7 and 8 p.c. issues. Oils further recovered. Shells closed quite strong.

Government National 5 p.c. Sterling Loan was firm at 92¼.

In British Funds, Consols rose ⅛ to 57⅞. War Loan 5 p.c. ⅛ to 101¼-⅜, and ditto by Deed ¼ to 101¼. Funding Loan realised 88½. Irish Land 3 p.c. eased ⅛ to 63½, and Conversion 3½ p.c. ¼ to 77½.

In Corporation, etc., issues, Belfast 3½ p.c. (1935) Stock was bid up to 53, but did not offer, but Bray Township 3½ p.c. fell ¼ to 62¼.

Banks closed in request. Bank of Ireland Stock rose ½ to 274, while Hibernians repeated 7½, Munster and Leinsters 6½, and Nationals 19½.

As regards Breweries, Guinness Ord. opened steady at 41¾, but fell away at the later market to 41⅞ ¼. The Pref., after opening ¼ lower at 12, rallied to 12⅛. Power and Son Pref. improved 3d. to 21s. for an exceptional lot.

Marconi Ord. rose 1s. 1½d. further to 32s., 31s. 9d., 33s. 10½d., while Radio Common and Preferred both realised 18s. 4½d.

Home Railways were a trifle irregular. Dublin and South-Eastern Ord. rose ¼ to 16, and the "A" 4 p.c. Debs. again closed 61, 62 nominally. Great Southern and Western Guaranteed recovered ¼ to 64½, while the Debs. gave way ½ to 70, and the Ordinary ¼ to 45½ 45. Midland Great Western 4 p.c. Debs. were sold to a limited extent at 65 x.d. against 69½, with the dividend, the previous business done level. Great Northern again changed hands at 62.

In Tramways, Dublin United Ord. fell ⅛ to 7½, and the Pref. ⅛ to 9⅛.

Parent Tyre Ord. fell 6d. to 17s., and the Pref. repeated 15s. 3d. for odd lots in both cases. Dunlop Rubber 7 p.c. "B" Pref. realised 19s. 9d., and the Ord. eased 1½d. to 7s. 4½d.

Alliance Gas Shares rose ⅛ to 6¾, after earlier dealing at last price.

In Drapery Shares, Walpole Bros. Debs. rose 3d. to 83s. 9d. Crowe Wilson Ord. were sellers at 19s. 6d., or 3d. under last marking.

Among Manufacturing Shares, British-American Tobacco fell 6d. to 105s. 3d., while Imperials closed 3d. higher at 75s. 10½d. Textiles were idle and quiet. Coats repeated 61s., with a subsequent easing to 60s. 10½d. Cottons at 53s. were steady, while Courtaulds realised 64s. 4½d. Lever Bros. Pref. turned weak. The 7 p.c. fell 6d. to 19s. 10½d. x.d., and the 8 p.c. 4½d. to 19s. 9d. x.d.

In Trading, etc., Boyril Ord. repeated 15s. 3d., and Burke Debs. 9. Shell Transports rose 9d. further to 83s., 83s. 3d., and at the later market improved 1s. 3d. further to 84s. 6d. for an odd lot.

LONDON STOCKS RECOVER.

RISE IN UNDERGROUNDS.

A slight recovery took place in the Stock markets yesterday. British Funds were maintained, and in one or two instances a higher price returned. Business was again small, an adverse influence being the imminence of the settlement. The preliminary carry-over was arranged in Mining shares yesterday. In the Gilt-edged market, War Loan 5 p.c. was ¼ higher at 101¼, while the 3½ p.c. Conversion Loan finished ¼ up on the day at 77¼. 5½ p.c. Treasury Bonds, however, at 103¾, marked a fall of ¼. Indias remained firm, and Colonial Scrips were in some request at higher prices.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES were generally lower. French Loans gave way, the Fives at 24 finishing ½ lower, while the Fours dropped a point to 18. German issues kept at their overnight quotation. Brazils were weak, the Funding Bonds at 87 ex div. and the 5 p.c. Funding (1914) at 76 both losing a point on the day. Argentine 4 p.c. Recessions dropped a point to 74 ex div. Chinese were firm, and finished at a slightly higher level, the 5 p.c. (1896) gaining ½ to 94, while the 4½ p.c. (1898) were ½ better at 80½.

HOME RAILS were quiet, and few changes were recorded. Undergrounds were a feature; the Ord. at 2¾ gained ¼, while Income Bonds finished 3 points higher at 98 on the maintenance of the full rate of interest. The only other changes marked were in Metropolitans, which at 80½ showed a rise of ½, while the Districts at 51½ were also ½ higher.

COLONIAL AND FOREIGN RAILS were lower. Grand Trunks all finished lower; the 4 p.c. Guar. at 80 dropped a point, while the Pacific 4 p.c. Deb. at 40½ and the 4 p.c. Perp. Deb. at 80 ex div. were also both a point down. Central Argentine lost ½ to 74, while Buenos Ayres and Western at 75 were also ½ lower.

OIL SHARES RISING.

FINAL PRICES BELOW BEST.

Firmness continued to characterise the Oil Share market yesterday, and, although slightly less active than on the preceding day, the leading issues generally added to their overnight gains. Final prices were, however, a little below the best. Royal Dutch were a good market, further buying on Amsterdam account being reported as the fair broad demand being experienced. Shells continued to change hands freely, and registered a further improvement, although in the case of these shares the best price was not held to the end. Anglo-Persians and Burmahs preserved a firm tone and maintained the advances scored on the preceding day. Mexican Eagles again received a further amount of attention and registered an improvement, while the 7 p.c. Prefs. enjoyed support. The report of the Mexican Eagle Company, which should be in the hands of shareholders within the next few days, is awaited with considerable interest. V.O.C. Holdings displayed firmness, finishing at an advance. British Controlled, which were a steady market for the greater part of the day, came on offer at the end, and finally registered a decline. A steady tone prevailed among Roumanians, Phœnix registering an improvement, Steaua Romana (British) maintaining the advance of the preceding day, and Maissis Petroleum Trust showing a further gain. In the Trinidad group Leaseholds were firm on the improvement in production last month. Apex were a harder market than of late, and Centrals made a partial recovery. Lobitos were a steady market throughout the day, but Anglo-Ecuadorians slipped back to a trifling extent. Kern Rivers came into renewed demand, and the quotation responded smartly, although they left off below the best. Closing prices :—
